CENTRAL INTELLIGENCE AGENCY Washington, D. C.

ADMINISTRATIVE INSTRUCTION NUMBER

January 1948

SUBJECT: Loyalty Board

- 1. Under authority contained in Executive Order No. 9835, dated 21 Harch 1947, there is hereby established a Loyalty Board for the Central Intelligence Agency to review all loyalty cases arising in CIA and make recommendations with respect to the removal of any CIA officer or employed on grounds relating to loyalty. The Board shall consist of three voting members: the Executive Director, CIA, as Chairman, who shall for each case name two from among the Deputies to the Assistant Directors, CIA, as nembers. An Assistant General Counsel shall attend as law Member without vote. In the event any case for consideration of the Board involves personnel of a branch under an Assistant Director, the Deputy for the Assistant Director of that branch will not participate in any deliberation or action of the Board on that case.
- 2. The Board shall make determination of all cases referred to it by majority vote. Where decision adverse to the employee is made by the Board, the individual concerned may appeal to the Director, CIA, within ten (10) days of the time when notification of the Board's action reaches him. The Director may request the Leyalty Review Board of the Civil Service Commission for an advisory opinion in any case referred to him. The employee concerned may appeal the final decision of the Director, within ton (10) days of receipt thereof, to the Loyalty Review Board of the Civil Service Commission for an advisory recommendation.
- 3. In the event the loyalty of any CIA employee is suspect, the case shall be referred directly to the Board by Assistant Directors for employees within their respective branches, or by the Security and Personnel offices through the Executive for Administration and Management. Where information reaches the Board from other sources, it may on its own initiative investigate the circumstances, utilizing all facilities of CIA, and determine whether or not the case is proper for its consideration.

- When a case is accepted by the Board, it shall immediately notify the employee in writing of the charges made against him and shall forward to him written interrogatories containing the information on which the charges are based and requesting specific answers from the employee concerning such information. Notice to the employee shall state the time and place of the Board's meeting for that care and shall specify the time in which the completed interrogatories must be returned. In the case of employees located in Washington, fifteen (15) days notice of the Board's meeting shall be given, and ten (10) days shall be given for return of the interrogatory. Reasonable extensions of time may be granted by the Chairman of the Board upon advice of the Law Member. The initial notice to the employee shall also inform him of his right to appear in person before the Board at its meeting on his case, accompanied by counsel. or representative of his choosing and to present evidence on his behalf through witness or by affidavit. He shall also be given specific information on any security questions Which representation by counsel or representative outside the Agency may raise, particularly on what facts may be a revealed about the nature and scope of his employment.
- when the Board has accepted a case it shall forward interregatories for completion by the employee and shall specify the time of return of the completed interrogatories. The Board shall then sit in a preliminary session to determine whether further action is necessary. If the preliminary decision is favorable to the employee, he shall be so notified and the record closed. If the preliminary decision is unfavorable, or the Board is unable to arrive at a decision, the employee shall be immediately returned to Washington and final action taken by the Board on his arrival, in necordance with the procedure outlined above for Washington employees.
- 6. When the Board has accepted a case as provided in paragraphs 4 and 5, the Board shall inform the Chiof. Personnel Division, who shall take administrative action as provided in applicable regulations. The Board, however, may recommend immediate suspension on first reference of a case to it when there appears to be a serious threat to the national security. In cases not seriously threatening the national security, the Board may, with the approval of the Director, permit resignation instead of recommending suspension, or removal, where mitigating circumstances are found in an unfavorable determination.

- 7. In any case where decision by the Board is unfavorable to the employee and the right of appeal is not exercised, the Board shall make appropriate recommendation to the Director for dismissal of the employee. Approval by the Director of such recommendation, or the decision of the Director on cases appealed to him, shall constitute final disposition of each case, subject only to advisory recommendation of the Civil Service Commission's Loyalty Review Board, if requested. Final action to terminate an employee shall not be taken in less than thirty calendar days after the original notice to the employee of the proposed removal action, except as provided on page S 1-13 of the Federal Personnel Manual.
- 8. Files and deliberations of the Board shall be kept confidential, and all records, documents, and evidence not the property of the employee shall be forwarded to the Executive for Inspection and Security for disposition as follows. If the determination of the Board is favorable to the employee, the Executive for Inspection and Security shall retain the entire file with the security files on the individual concerned. If the individual is permitted to resign after infavorable determination, as provided for in paragraph 6, the file should be forwarded to the Civil Service Commission with notice of the resignation. If the case is referred or appealed to the Loyalty Review Board of the Civil Service Commission, the file shall be forwarded to that Board in triplicate, unless the Board agrees that a single copy is adequate.
- 9. The Board need not follow strictly rules of evidence applicable to courts of law and need not divulge confidential sources of information, but the Law Member shall be responsible for advising the Board of any action of the Board which might infringe an employee's constitutional rights. All testimony at hearings of the Board shall be under eath or affirmation. The Law Member may report to the Director any action of the Board which, in his opinion, is an infringement of such rights. The standard for removal of an employee shall be that on all evidence, reasonable grounds exist for belief that the person involved is disloyal to the Government of the United States.
- 10. Immediately before final action by the Director, each case shall be referred to the General Counsel, CIA, for review of the legal sufficiency of the administrative action taken.

MEMORANDUM FOR THE FXECUTIVE FOR ASM

Subject: Loyalty Board

1. Under the provisions of Executive Order 9835 and the instructions issued by the Civil Service Commission on 23 December 1947, it appears that CIA will be required to establish a Loyalty Board.

2. In reviewing the instructions from the Commission, it appears that the Board established by CIG in Memorandum No. 19 of 16 April 1947 would be adequate for CIA's purposes, with a few necessary changes. Incidentally, this Memorandum was inspected by a representative of the Commission prior to issuance and was approved by him. Of course, all provisions of the memo referring to CIG should be changed to CIA. Provision should be made for suspension in proper cases and for permitting resignations, as authorized by the Civil Service Commission. I would suggest a new paragraph be added as paragraph 6, as follows:

"6. When the Board has accepted a case as provided in paragraphs 4 and 5, the Board shall inform the Chief, Personnel Division, who shall take administrative action as provided in applicable regulations. The Hoard, however, may recommend immediate suspension on first reference of a case to it when there appears to be a serious threat to the national security. In cases not seriously threatening the national security, the Board may, with the approval of the Director, permit resignation instead of recommending suspension, or removal, where mitigating circumstances are found in an unfavorable determination."

This new paragraph would require remumbering old paragraphs 6, 7, 8, and 9, and the climination of the last sentence of old paragraph 6. Paragraph 5 should be amended so that the first sentence reads:

oversess, when the Board has accepted a case it abali forward interrogatories a c sw.

I suggest the addition to old paragraph 5 of a sentence stating:

"Final action to terminate an employee shall not be taken in loss than thirty calendar days after the original notice to the employee of the proposed removal action, except as provided on page 8 1-13 of the Federal Personnel Manual.

Executive for AMI

IS January 1968

Old paragraph 8 should be amended to insert after the first

"All testimony at hearings of the Board shall be under onth or affirmation."

5. The Civil Service Commission directs that in the event of resignation, notice be given the Commission and the complete file be forwarded to it. In view of our particular arrangements with the Commission, I feel they would be willing to exempt us from this provision, but if there is no objection to forwarding such files, old paragraph 7 should be amended to read as follows:

"8. Filos and deliberations of the Board shall be kept confidential, and all records, documents, and evidence not the property of the employee shall be forwarded to the Executive for Inspection and Security for disposition as follows, If the determination of the Board is favorable to the employee, the Executive for Inspection and Security shall retain the entire file with the security files on the individual concerned. If the individual is permitted to resign after unfavorable determination, as provided for in paragraph 6, the file should be formarded to the Civil Service Commission with notice of the resignation. If the case is referred or appealed to the Loyalty Review Board of the Givil Service Commission, the file shall be forwarded to that Board in triplicato, unless the Board agrees that a single copy is adequate."

Board is issued, we should forward a copy to the Commission, requesting its approval of the procedures therein established. In its letter, the Loyalty Review Board directs that agencies having the power of summiny removal furnish the Board, upon request, with complete statistics regarding actions taken under that power. I believe no reference to the Director's authority under the Entional Security Act should be made in the letter referring the Loyalty Board order to the Commission. We are working on a draft of such a letter, in the event you wish to proceed in this manner.

KENORANDUM POR THE ADSO

Subject: Deportation of Aliens

- l. We informed you recently that the Department of Justice had confirmed newspaper reports on deportation of former members of the Communist Party. The Department views the statute in question as mendatory in regard to ex-communists.
- 2. A specific problem in this connection has been raised by one of the branches. It now has under its control overseas a young fereigner who was an officer of an organization now coming under the control of the Communist Party. The opportunity appears ideal for him to follow the present course of the organization to become a Communist Party member, with a possibility that he may become a trusted officer with access to valuable information while yet remaining under our control. It is my understanding that he desires no corritment as to entry into this country when the project is finished. He has, however, raised the specific question whether membership in the Communist Party for our benefit would projudice his position if he would otherwise be admitted as a quota irrigrant in the United States, on his can application under applicable Immigration laws.
- merely document the plan and present intention fully by statements of responsible officers concerned. At the end of the project, they would study the situation carefully, and if he seems to have maintained his integrity, present the full story to the appropriate C onsul and the Immigration and Naturalization Bureau with our recommendation. This would undoubtedly be of value in any visa application but would in no may guarantee him any protection. The second approach would be again to document the present situation in the same fashion and to present the situation actually, or hypothetically, to the Attorney Ceneral and request a statement from him that if the project succeeded and at the end the individual on careful investigation appeared properly qualified for citizenship, his membership in the Communist Party for our benefit would in no way projudice an immigration visa, or subsequent naturalization under applicable law.

23 January 1948

- 4. I feel the Attorney Ceneral could commit himself on this point, as, although he feels that he must deport former actual communists, he has some discretion in determining what individuals fall into that category. The presentation of this specific case at this time would permit us to raise the larger general question of exceptions to the deportation rule in the case of defections brought about for intelligence purposes. The issue here would turn on whether we could show that a properly backed defection program, which could offer asylum in this country to the defectors, was necessary to intelligence operations to the extent that those operations would be seriously handiscapped unless special handling could be guaranteed.
- it is felt that any such program would have to be laid before the Judiciary Cormittees of Congress in Executive Session, in order to get proper guarantees of effective action. The more subtle aspect of this question is that in almost all cases actual asylum in this country would not be required, but the fact that it could be promised would everement the psychological deterrent to defection which the present attitude of the Department has encouraged.
- 6. If you wish further information on the Department of Justice's attitude on the questions involved. I believe it can be obtained informally without any commitments being made.

MEMORANDUM FOR EXECUTIVE FOR A & M

SUBJECT: Proposed Administrative Instruction for Maritorious Suggestions Awards.

1. It is felt that corrections to the proposed administrative instruction indicated below be considered particularly for the following reasons:

- (a) Sufficient weight does not seem to be laid on the fact that the meritorious suggestions are primarily those which will result in economy and over-all monotony saving.
- (b) There is nothing in Public Law 600 or Executive Order 9817 which will permit in-grade promotions for meritorious suggestions.
- (c) The question should be raised as to whether the Amards Committee may make the smards or merely serve in an advisory capacity to the Director for this purpose.
- 2. It is suggested that the first sentence of paragraph

"In the interest of making continual improvement or economy in the operations of CIA..."

This follows the language of Executive Order 9817. The use of the word "management" is questioned, particularly as paragraph 4 of the proposed instruction specifically declares incligible those having the assigned responsibility for the improvement of management.

3. The Committee expointed in paragraph 1(a) is called by two different names within the paragraph. It would seem preferable if one name could be agreed on — such as "CIA Meritorious Awards Committee" or "CIA Meritorious Suggestions Awards Committee". The more calling of the Committee the

"CIA Awards Committee" might raise an erroneous picture of its jurisdiction by an indication that it handle all awards for the Agency, including military.

- the Paragraph 1(a) of the proposed directive, in referring to the Committee membership, states that "These officers of the Committee may-designate alternates..."

 As there is only one officer the Chairman perhaps he alone should designate alternates to the Committee.

 Otherwise, this sentence should read, "The Members of the Committee may designate alternates..."
- 5. Section 14 of Public Law 600 rests the authority to pay each awards for meritorious suggestions in "the head of each department". For his guidance in the making of these awards, Section 2 of Executive Order 9817 establishes a monetary scale for payments commensurate with the empert of savings. This scale must be followed unless "for special reasons the head of the department chall determine . . . that a different amount is justified". It would expear, therefore, that the Director must pass on the smount of the award for a meritorious suggestion which is adopted solely or primarily because of menutary saving.

The Executive Order places the burden of passing on suggestions "in the judgment of the department head or other Guly authorized authority in the department..." In vice of this language, it is constuded that the Committee may pade on suggestions as the Guly authorized authority in the Agency, and recommend as to the size of the award. However, their decision should be considered advisory only, and the momentary award should have the final approval of the Director in compliance with the terms of the Executive Order. It is recommended that this be complied with, as the General Accounting Office might, at some future date, raise the question as to the authorized the expenditure of funds in this connection.

It should be noted further that when a suggestion—is adopted primarily upon the basis of improvement in operations or services rather than for reasons of economy, "the department shall determine the ensumt of the exart..."
As the scotion (Section 5) of the Executive Order is not qualified by any table of minimum or maximum awards, the Committee may make the final determination of the award to be granted, subject to the statutory limitation that no one sward shall exceed $1,000.

6. After the phrase "79th Congress" in line 2 paragraph 2 of the original draft, suggest the addition in parenthesis of the phrase "(5 U.S.C.A. 116a)" for quick reference, as this is the standard legal form of citation.

It would again appear preferable in the conclusion of the second sentence of paragraph 2 to use the language of the Executive Order by revising to read, "suggestions for improvement or economy in the operations of C.I.A."

The emphasis on suggestions for economy should be stressed.

7. It would seem preferable to follow more closely the language of the Executive Order in setting forth the awards authorized in paragraph 3. The proposed text in paragraph 3 (a)(1) does not point out clearly that this type of award is based on a suggestion that is adopted solely or primarily because it will result in monetary texting. It is adjusted what paragraph 3 be revised to result as follows:

"3. AWARDS AUTHORIZED.

(a) The following awards are authorized for a meritorious suggestion which is adopted solely or primarily because it will result or has resulted in the saving of money. The amount of the award shall be based on the amount of the amount estimated saving in the first year of operation in accordance with the following table, unless, for special reasons, the Director shall shall determine, subject to certain statutory limitations, that a different amount is justified:

 8AVII'03	AMARDS
$1 $1,000	-$10 for each $200 of savings with a minimum of $10 for any salopted suggestion.
$1,000 $10,000	$50 for the first $1,000 of savings, and $25 for each additional $1,000 of savings.
$10,000 $100,000	-$275 for the first $10,000 of savings, and $50 for each additional $10,000 of savings.
$100,000 or more	-$725 for the first $100,000 of - savings, and $100 for each addi- tional $100,000 of savings; pro- vided that (with the exception of the War and Nevy Departments) the maximum award for any one suggestion shall not exceed $1,000.

It is indicated in the proposed revision of paragraph 3(a) and in accordance with the Executive Order that the monetary basis for the award depends on the amount of estimated saving in the first year of operation under the meritorious suggestion. In conition, the original draft should be corrected as proposed above so that the monetary sums correspond with those set out in the Executive Order.

8. Paragraph 3 (a)(2) of the original draft should be eliminated. There is nothing either in Public Lem 600 or Executive Order 9817 thich permits special within-grade salary increases for moritorious suggestions. The foundation for these increases are based on another law and should-be properly the subject of a separate administrative instruction.

Following paragraph 3(a), as proposed above, the following should appear:

- upon the basis of improvement in the operations or services of C.I.A., the Access shall determine the expent of the exact communicate with the banefits enticipated from the suggestion. The amount of any one exact shall not exceed $1,000.
- "(c). Certificates, medals, or other emblems may be awarded by C.I.A. in honorary recognition of service which the Director determines to be exceptional or meritorious."
- 9. It is suggested that the original draft of paragraph 4 be reconsidered so as to include possible amonds for those having specific responsibility for management improvement. Personnel in the management staff might suggest operational changes which exceed the normal requirements of the duties of their position or might produce a suggestion of such markt that the Director, in accordance with the terms of the Executive Order, might report it to the Director of the Burgou of the Budget for dissemination to all departments of the Government on the basis that the suggestion would benefit the Government service generally. The Law and Executive Order provide these amonds for "any civilian officer or amployee of a department", and consideration should therefore be given to the possible participation of those who have management responsibilities who might make suggestions in fields other than management. This is particularly true in an Agency such as C.I.A. where the line between management and operations may in some instances be quite clearly drawn.

10. It is suggested that paragraph 5 of the original draft be revised to read as follows:

sidored by LLD U.T.A. LUPitorious Suggestions America Committee where in the opinion of the Committee the meritorious suggestion has resulted or will result in improvement or economy in theoperations of the Agency by way of monotary savings, increased efficiency, conservation of property, improved employed-working conditions, better service to the public, or otherwise.

"In order to have the meritorious suggestion considered for an award, the suggestion must have been adopted for use in the Agency.

"No award shall be paid for any suggestion not edopted for use within five (5) years from the date the suggestion is received by the Agency.

"No amord shall be paid to any officer or employee of C.I.A. for any suggestion which represents a part of the normal requirements of the duties of his position."

It should be noted, in connection with the fiveyear limitation set forth above, that the Agency may, in its discretion, change the period to one of less than five years. It is therefore suggested that the Executive for A & M determine the period thich he considers appropriate should be deem five years to be too long.

- 11. The following paragraph should be included in the instruction, possibly as a new paragraph 6, with the old paragraphs 6 and 7 remembered to 7 and 8;
 - gestion shall be in addition to the regular compensation of the recipient, and the acceptance of such cash award shall constitute an agreement that the use by the United States of the suggestion for which the award is made shall not form the basis of a further claim of any nature upon the United States by the recipient, his heirs or assigns."

12. In order to conform to the terms of the Executive Order, the original paragraph 6 (a)(4) should be revised to read:

"(4). A detailed description of the suggestion with a statement of the satual saving of money which will result or has resulted in the first year of its operation."

MEMORAHDUM FOR EXECUTIVE FOR ADMINISTRATION AND MANAGEMENT

SUBJECT: Administrative Instruction for Meritorious Suggestion Awards.

- 1. The Executive for A and M is about to issue an administrative instruction in the 20 series in connection with a program of awards for meritorious suggestions by members of CeleAe
- 2. In connection with this program certain administrative responsibilities will fall on the Agency and more particularly upon the Executive for A and H, in accordance with Public Law 600 of the 79th Congress and Executive Order 9817 which promulgates regulations concerning those awards. These responsibilities are over and above the problems attendant upon the internal administration of this program and are set forth herewith for your guidance.
 - S. The matters referred to above are as follows:
 - (a) The amount of any one award for moritorious suggestion shall not exceed $1,000 and the total of cash awards paid during any fiscal year by the Agency shall not exceed $25,000. (Public Low 600, Section 14)
 - (b) Paymonts may be made from the appropriation for the activity primarily benefiting or may be distributed among appropriations for activities benefiting, as the Director determines. (Public Law 600, Section 14)
 - (c) Whenever the Director believes that the suggestion he has adopted would benefit the Government service generally, he may report it to the Director of the Bureau of the Budget for discomination to all departments. (Executive Order 9817, Section 5)
 - (d) At the end of each fiscal year the Agency shall report to the Director of the Bureau of the Budget the number of employee suggestions submitted, the number of such suggestions adopted, the total amount of each awards, and the total amount of estimated amual savings. (Executive Order 9817, Section 4)
 - (e) In addition to the cash award set forth in the administrative instruction, the Agency may provide for the purchase and award of appropriate certificates, medals or other emblems in honorary recognition of service which the Director determines to be exceptional or moritorious. The expenditure for honorary recognition may be made from appropriations as indicated in 5(b) above. (Executive Order 9817, Sections 5 and 8)

4. If a cash award for a meritorious suggestion is being made, it is suggested that the recipient acknowledge its receipt in writing, which receipt should include a phrase to the effect that --- ment between its recipient, (Heme of recipient) and the Central Intelligence Agency that the use of the meritorious suggestion by the United States for which this sward has been made, shall not form the basis of a further claim of any nature upon the United States by me, my heirs or assigns."

At such time as it is determined that a meritorious award is to be made, the office of the General Counsel will assist in the preparation of the mecessary release.

Opposed to this is the statutory responsibility imposed upon you as Director by Section 102(d)(3) of the National Security Act which provides "That the Director of Central Fitelligence shall be responsible for protecting intelligence scurces and methods from unauthorized disclosure". It is felt that the publishing of curpersonnel figures would be an unauthorized disclosure of intelligence methods.

ment that the Bureau of the Budget is required by law to fix ceilings and publish civilian percouncil figures, there appears to be little room for contradiction. The law provides (5 U.S.C.A. 947(b)) that the Director of the Bureau of the Budget shall determine at least quarterly the number of employees required in each Department or Agency of the Covernment. It is further required that such determinations shall be reported quarterly to the Congress. Each such report shall include a statement showing each agency's net increase or decrease in employees as compared with the proceding report.

Thus it is apparent that the Director of the Bureau of the Eudget is required to furnish the Congress with our personnel figures and it is assumed that this report is referred by the President of the Senate and Epocker of the House to the appropriate committees of the Congress of which, under its charter, the Byrd Committee is one. Failure to do this in commestion with C.I.A. means that the Director of the Dureau of the Dudget (the is also a member of the Byrd Committee) is in default of his legal obligations and could be compelled at any time to produce our figures. The only apparent legal remain would be a section in proposed U.I.A. legislation exampling the Director of the Dureau of the Buffet from furnishing the figures of this Agency to the Congress.

by law (5 U.S.C.A. 654) to publich yearly an Official Register of the United States which contains a full and complete list of persons occupying administrative and cupervisory positions in the Executive branch of the Government the are paid by the United States Treasury. This Register shall show the name, official title, salary, compensation and ampliants, legal residence and the place of employment for each person listed therein. The law further requires that the head of an agency such as C.I.A. shall supply the Civil Service Commission with the data required by this Section as of the first of May of each year. Ememptica from the provision of this law should be sought by legislation.

- 5. The Civil Sorvice Commission furnishes Government personnel figures on a monthly basis to the Civil Sorvice Committees of the Congress and the Byrd Committee as a matter of routine.
- 6. In view of the above, there appears to be very little legal grounds upon which the Director can stand in his conference with Senator Byrd other than the provision of the National Security Act, cited above, for protecting intelligence sources and methods from unauthorized disclosure.

Employees' Co-Operative

- 1. I have discussed the problem of making space in a Covernment building available to an Employees Co-Operative with the office of the Commissioner for Buildings Management in PBA.
- 2. They agree that there is no restrictive legislation which specifically states that building space cannot be used for an Employoes! Co-Operative. They point, however, to the wording of acts making appropristions for purchase and construction and care of buildings, which specify the money shall be used to construct facilities for the specific use intended by the act. They consider such language as restrictive in intent and, consequently, have a policy that space will not be rade available for other than official business of the agency concerned. In this connection, they point to the fact that for the refreshment stands run by the blind, and PK facilities in PBA buildings. there is specific legislation to authorize the allocation of space. Also, the Department of Agriculture makes space evailable for certain not strictly official purposes, but they have special legislative authority which takes them out from under PBA.
- 3. It is admowledged by PBA that there is no legislative authority to allocate space to CSI cafeterias, but this they justify under a general authority to use the buildings for all purposes necessary to the efficient support of Government business.
- 4. I pointed out that the New Interior Building contained a shop for the sale of Indian handicraft. They informed me that this was allocated during a period when the Secretary of Interior had control of the building and was done at the instance of the Secretary himself. They consider the use improper but have not seen fit to raise the issue.

5. Whether the Co-Operative could be considered a facility necessary to the efficient conduct of Government business to the same extent as GSI is open to question. If the space contemplated for use of the Co-Operative is controlled by PBA, we shall almost certainly get opposition from the Buildings Management Office. The final answer, however, will probably have to be given by

6. If the Co-Operative is still being pressed and you wish to use Government space, let me know whether the space under consideration is under PBA control and whether you wish to go over PBA to the Federal Works Administrator for a final ruling. If not under PBA, please let me know who controls the space, and we shall try to obtain approval for its release.

PERSONNEL BRANCH

SUBJECT:

Appointment of Naturalized Citizens and Aliens

l. Reference is made to your oral request for an opinion concerning the legality of appointing for duty in the continental United States an alien to be paid from youchered funds. This matter is the subject of a memorandum, dated 3 January 1947, to the Deputy Executive for Personnel and Administration from this office. A copy of that memorandum is attached.

- 2. Section 202 of the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1948, approved 30 July 1947, contains language very similar to that of the 1947 Independent Offices Appropriation Act which is discussed in paragraph 3 of the 3 January 1947 memorandum. Section 202 further provides this section shall not apply to citizens of the Republic of the Philippines or to nationals of those countries allied with the United States in the prosecution of the war.
- 3. You state the particular case involves a citizen of Russia who has filed his first papers, declaring his intention to become an American citizen, and that you wish to employ this individual for duty in Washington. It appears clear that a citizen of Russia is a national of a country allied with the United States in the prosecution of the war within the meaning of Section 202. (cf. Decision of Comptroller General, dated 7 April 1947, B-64711). Therefore, there would be no legal objection to the employment of a national of Russia for duty in Washington. Your attention is called to paragraph 4 of the memorandum of 3 January 1947 concerning appropriate security investigations and questions of policy.
- 4. The question of employing aliens is being considered in connection with the proposed legislation for CIA. The point will be discussed with the Bureau of the

Executive Order 9721

1. In accordance with a telephone inquiry from your office, we are forwarding a copy of Executive Order 9721, concerning the transfer of personnel to public international organizations.

2. We have not had occasion to study thoroughly the application of this Order to CIA employees on Schodule A. We note, however, that the employment rights cited in paragraph 3(a) of the Order are not limited to those with permanent status but are given to those with classified civil-service status. Thus, 3(a) and (b) would appear to be applicable to our situation. We shall be glad to work with the Personnel Branch, ALM, on any actual case which may arise through your office.

We note that Executive Order 9862 of 31 May 1947 extends provisions of E.O. 2721 to the transfer of personnel to the American mission for aid to Greece and the American mission for aid to Turkey. Furthermore, E.O. 9932, effective 1 September 1947, published 2 Harch 1948, makes similar provision under authority of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, for assignment of officers or employees of the Government to the Foreign Service as Foreign Service reserve officers. In this case, reinstatement at the end of the tour as Poreign Service reserve officer is governed by Section 528 of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, which provided that on termination the officer shall be entitled to reinstatement in the Government agoncy by which he is regularly employed in the same position which he occupied at the time of assignment, or in a corresponding or higher position. E.O. 9032 provides that, if the individual accepts a position elsowhere than in the Government agency in which he previously served or fails to avail himself of his reinstatement rights within thirty days, he waives his rights under Section 528 of the Poreign Service Act.

4. We feel that each case arising in CIA should have full consideration by the Personnel Branch, AcM, and this office, to insure proper protection of the individual and the Agency.

Designation of Beneficiaries

John 5 Haron 1948 Compensation:

- l. In order for beneficiaries to be entitled to death benefits under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act, it is necessary for them to file designations of beneficiaries with the Civil Service Commission. A case decided in the summer of 1947 made such filing a condition of payment. In that case, the agency concerned held the designation for three days, during which period the employee died. The Court's ruling was that settlement could not be made for failure to comply with the provision of law on a filing with the Commission. This case has been appealed three times, and the latest appeal is still pending.
- 2. To avoid projudice to the rights of any CIA employee, we should comply strictly with the present interpretation of the law. The practical problem concerns security. This Agency wishes to avoid any arrangement which would make available to unauthorized persons a list of employees of CIA, or even an approximation of the personnel strength of the Agency. Consequently, the designations should not be forwarded to the Commission through our channels.
- 3. Ur. Warron Irons, who is Chief of the Retirement Section of the Commission, pointed out that the designation does not require identification of the agency for which the employee concerned works and may be forwarded in to the Commission directly by the employee. He suggested that such direct filing of the designations would not in any way prejudice our security. It is recommended, therefore, that the Personnel Division attempt to devise a system whereby all employees will file designations with the Commission without reference to CIA.
- 4. In order to protect the interests of our designees, we should have either duplicates on file, or a check list to insure that, in the event of death, the fact of death and the employee's status can be properly brought to the Commission's attention. Special circumstances may arise in connection with certain OSO employees, or others employed under special circumstances, which will require other arrangements. If such circumstances arise during a study of this problem, we shall be glad to assist in working them out in order to protect all employees.

of this situation in the event that a possible reversal will give more latitude in the manner of filing designations.

- 1. Reference is made to your memorandum to this office, dated 9 March 1948, concerning the above subject. The form 57 and Special Orders No. 43, dated 20 February 1946, enclosed in your memorandum are returned herewith. You request advice whether subject may be employed by CIA as a Consultant at $35.00 per day without making it necessary that he relinquish his retirement pay while so employed.
- 2. It is obvious that Section 58 of Title 5 of the USCA is not applicable since Section 59 of that Title specifically states that Section 58 shall not apply to retired officers of the Army. There is for consideration whether that subject would come within the terms of Section 62 of Title 5, USCA. However, Section 62 provides that retired officers of the Army who have been retired for injuries or incapacity incurred in line of duty shall not, within the meaning of Section 62, be construed to hold or to have held an office during such retirement. Upon reading the retirement orders of subject (Special Orders No. 43, dated 20 February 1946), we feel that Lang does not hold an office within the meaning of Section 62. There remains for consideration, Section 212 of the Economy Act, included in the USCA as Section 59a of Title 5, which reads as follows:
 - may as commissioned officer in the Army, Navy, Marine, Coast Guard, Coast and Geodetic Survey and Public Health Service. (a) After June 30, 1932, no person holding a civilian office or position, appointive or elective, under the United States Government or the municipal government of the District of Columbia or under any corporation, the majority of the stock of which is owned by the United States, shall be entitled, during the period of such incumbency, to retired pay from the United States for or on account of services as a commissioned officer in any of the services mentioned in Title 37, at a rate in excess of an amount which when combined with the annual rate or compensation from such civilian office or position, makes the total rate from both sources more than $3,000; and when the retired pay amounts to or exceeds the rate of £3,000 per annum such person shall be entitled to the pay of the civilian office or position or the retired pay, whichever he may elect. As used in this section, the term "retired pay" shall be construed to include credits for all service that lawfully may enter into the computation thereof.

- (b) This section shall not apply to any person whose retired pay, plus civilian pay, amounts to less than $3,000: Provided, That this section shall not apply to regular or emergency commissioned officers retired for disability incurred in combat with an enemy of the United States or for disabilities resulting from an explosion of an instrumentality of war in line of duty during an enlistment or employment as provided in Veterans Regulation Numbered 1 (a), part I, paragraph I. June 30, 1932, c. 314, #212, 47 Stat. 406, as amended July 15, 1940, c. 626, #3, 54 Stat. 761.
- 3. In 26 Comp. Gen. 501, dated 17 January 1947, it is stated that GAO has not had occasion to pass upon the question of whether an officer of the armed forces retired for disability, who is employed as a consultant upon a fee basis, holds a "civilian office or position", within the meaning of those words as used in section 212 of the Economy Act. The term "compensation" in its generally accepted meaning embraces both "fees" and "salary" as well as remuneration received in any other form for services rendered. The particular case cited is one in which the Veterans' Administration was involved, and the Comptroller stated:

"It would not appear the consultants the Veterans' Administration is desirous of employing in the instant matter will perform or supervise duties and responsibilities imposed by law upon the agency, or be under the administrative control of an official of the Government in the usual sense. On the contrary, it is understood that their employment will be in an advisory capacity".

The opinion goes on to state that their duties will consist primarily of expressing their views end giving their opinions and recommendations upon particular problems and questions presented to them for consideration in consultation or otherwise by administrative officers of the Government. Therefore, it is concluded in the opinion that employment by Veterans' Administration of former officers of the armed forces, retired for disability, as consultants upon a fee basis would not be in contravention of Section 212 of the Economy Act -- no sound reason being perceived for regarding them as occupying an "office or position" within the meaning of those terms as used in said statute. The Veterans' Administration had specifically pointed out that the compensation of such consultants was based on a specific amount per visit as differentiated from a per annum, per diem, or other element basis.

- 4. In 26 Comp. Gen. 720, dated 31 March 1947, the Navy Department desired to employ a former Navy officer, retired for disability, by a personal service contract for employment. It was held that persons employed by contract to perform duties imposed by law upon an agency, and who are subject to control and supervision of administrative officers are employees holding positions under the United States Government. A naval officer ratired for disability incident to the service but not in combat with the enemy, who is employed under a contract to perform purely personal services, is subject to the provisions of Section 212 of the Economy Act (5 USCA 59a).
- of the proposed duties for Consequently, this 25X1A5a1 office is not in a position to answer your specific question. There should be submitted a detailed explanation of the duties which would be performed by the subject. On receipt of such explanation, we shall be pleased to furnish you with our opinion whether or not it will be necessary that he elect to receive his retired pay or the proposed per diem of $35.00 per day as compensation for his services.

Returned herewith is dum of 1 April 1948 on the above subject, and also attached is a memorandum from the Chief, Budget and Finance Branch concerning the implementation of the project if authorized. The Chief, Ber Branch points out that the mechanics can quickly be carried out if the proposal is approved by appropriate authority. Since this expenditure is not authorized by regulations, the project should be submitted to the Projects Review Committee for recommendation to the Director in accordance with Administrative Instruction 60-2. The proposed allocation could not be made out of Vouchered Funds. Unvouchered Funds are normally to be used only for support of confidential activities where security is of paramount importance. In view of the fact that the situation presented by the primarily and the statement of the statement administrative problem of an overt operation supported 25X1A8a by Vouchered Funds, security does not appear to be a principal factor. The question for consideration by the Projects Review Cormittee, therefore, is whether the proposed expenditure is necessary to the extent that failure to authorize it would seriously impair the operations of the Agency. If the energency is sufficiently serious to warrant an exception to the normal controls on Unvouchered Funds, there would be no begal objection to authorization of this allocation by the Director. We wish to emphasize our view that such relief for administrative problems by use of Unvouchered Funds, to avoid legal restrictions which prohibit the use of Vouchered Funds, should be limited to cases of absolute necessity. Disclosure of Information

1. At the request of Wr. George Cray of the Office of the Legal Advisor to the Department of State, a meeting was held in the IGAPS Conference Room at 10 a.m. on 16 April 1948 to consider the subject of requests for information and subpoems by cormittees of Congress. These present were Kr. Alan Evans of the State Intelligence Research Division, Kr. George Gray of the State Department's Legal Advisor's Office, Colonel Blakeney of the Filitary Intelligence Division of the Department of the Army, Colonel Jordan of the Legislative Liaison Division of the Department, Fr. Wilson from the Mavy Department, Kr. Wilson from the Mavy Department, Kr. Wilson from the Mavy Department, Kr. Hollis from the Atomic Energy Cormission, Mr. Houston and Kr. Pformheimer of GIA.

- The discussion was general of the problems involved in requests from the Congress for information. The internal handling of such requests by the different acomoics was discussed, and it was found that the procodures were similar. In each case, there was a focal point for all responsible for handling all Congressional inquirles and for coordinating to get, first, a security ruling on the information required, and, accordly, a departmental policy rule. All present concurred that every effort was made in each case on a formal request from a committee to declassify, if possible, the ratorial requested and to cooperate insofar as possible with the consittee. All concurred further that under no circumstances would intolligence sources or methods be revealed. The upocial responsibility of the Director of Contral Intelligence in this connection was mentioned by Er. Gray.
- 3. Wr. Hollis mentioned that special legislation created a specific relationship between the Atomic Energy Commission and the appropriate Congressional joint committee. It was unanimously agreed that wherever possible, if the information concorned originated outside the agency, the inquiry wasturned over to the originating office. If such outside information was so interrelated as not to be separable, clearance would have to be obtained from the originating agency before the information could be released.

d. Various legal aspects of the question were discussed with the inconclusive result that the legal question of ultimate power to compel disclosure of information was still wide and that the question was still a practical one to be decided on the morits of each case. Some examples were explained and discussed. Mr. Evans pointed out that there had been, in the past year or so, one now and definitely troublesome development in that Congressional conditions were more and more requiring their staffs to perform studies relating to international affairs and that the staffs, therefore, would come to the Department for intelligence information. Again, however, the question of how to handle the situation was more practical than legal.

5. The mosting broke up on the general understanding that there was no action which could be taken to change the current situation.

"Dependent" or "Dependency Status" from the Standpoint of Quarters and Cost of Living Allowance

- 1. The question has been informally presented as to what constitutes a "dependent" or "dependency status" from the standpoint of Quarters and Cost of Living Allowance. It is the purpose of this memorandum:
 - a. To discuss the foregoing by referring initially to sources in which these terms, or their equivalents, are used. (Paragraphs 2.(a) and 2.(b) are noted below merely because of certain similarities in language to Quarters and Cost of Living Regulations.)
 - b. To determine the subjects included.
 - c. To refer to interpretive precedent where available.
 - 2. Reference is made to the following sources:
 - a. (1) Public Law 600, 79th Congress, provides in part as follows:
 - "(a) Under such regulations as the President may prescribe . . . the expenses of travel of himself and the expenses of transportation of his immediate family . . . "
 - (2) Pursuant to the authority vested in the President, supplemental regulation, in the form of Executive Order 9805, was issued which defined "immediate family" as follows:
 - "d. "Immediate family" means any of the following-named members of the employee's house-hold:
 - a. Spouse.
 b. Children (including stepchildren and adopted children), unmarried and under twenty-one years of ago.
 - capable of supporting themselves.
 - (but not of the spouse)."

b. Pursuant to Title IX of the Foreign Service Act of 1946, the Secretary of State prescribed Travel Regulations, Sec. 103.605 which defined family as follows:

"(b) "Family" means any of the following named members of the household of the officer or employee:

(1) Wife.

(2) Children (including stepchildren and adopted children) unmarried and under twenty-one years of age, or physically or mentally incapable of supporting themselves, regardless of age.

(3) Dependent parents (including stepparents and adoptive parents) of the officer or employee (but not of the spouse).

(4) Husband who is physically or mentally incapable of supporting himself.

- c. Pursuant to the Act of June 26, 1930 (46 Stat. 818), which authorized regulations for governing allowance for living quarters in the absence of officers or employees being furnished quarters, Circular No. A-8, Revised, was issued, defining family as follows:
 - "(d) "Family" means the mother, father, children, stepchildren, or sister of a married or unmarried employee living with the employee at the foreign post."

Circular No. A-8 provides further that one of the bases for granting a quarters allowance shall be the family status as defined above. Appendix II thereto gives administrative implementation to the foregoing by prescribing maximum allowance for rent, heat, fuel, and light on the basis of married, or unmarried with family, and single without family scale. It is to be noted that the only clause of limitation in this regard is "living with the employee at the foreign post".

d. The Secretary of State has adopted Bureau of the Budget Circular A-8, Revised, Part A, as a standard for granting quarters allowance, except as supplemented or modified by the Department of State Foreign Service Allowance Regulations. In this regard, it is to be noted that the latter Regulations, Section 108, paragraph 220, defines family as follows:

Wife.

(2) In case of an officer who has no wife residing with him at the post, his mother or sister or daughter, regardless of age or dependency, who acts as his hostess.

(3) A child or stepchild or adopted child who is under twenty-one.

(4) A child or stepchild or adopted child who is over twenty-one, but mentally or physically incapable of self-support.

(5) A parent (including a stepparent or adoptive parent) who is principally dependent upon the officer or employee for support.

(6) A sister or brother who is principally dependent upon the officer or employee for support, and who is under twenty-one years of age.

(7) A sister or brother who is principally dependent upon the officer or employee for support and is over twenty-one but physically or mentally incapable of self-support.

(8) The husband who is physically or mentally incapable of self-support.

In this regard, it is to be noted that though the definition of "family" under the Department of State Foreign Service Allowance Regulations is more extended, the concept of "dependency" is an expressed condition in certain instances. Circular A-8 does not qualify the relationship.

- Pursuant to Section 204 of the Act of July 30, 1947. (Public Law 269, 80th Congress), the benefits of Section 901 (2)(1) of the Foreign Service Act were extended to employees of all other departments. Since this was accomplished by Revision of Circular A-8, the extension of the term "dependent" as used in Appendix III, Schedules No. 1 and 2, thereof, can have no greater extension than the term "family" as defined in Circular A-8 proper.
- f. Pursuant to the Foreign Service Act of 1946, Section 901 (2)(1), the Secretary of State prescribed certain post allowances for employees living at foreign posts, the amount of the allowance being based on the classification of the post, basic salary, and family status. Paragraph (d), hereof, indicates what constitutes a family from the standpoint of the Foreign Service Allowance Regulations.

It is to be noted in this regard that the prescribed forms for granting cost of living allowance recognize the difference between porsonnel with dependents and personnol without dependents. "Dependents" as used, however, can have no greater extension than the term "family" as defined in the aforesaid Regulations.

- 3. From the foregoing, it is clear that in certain instances, the mere existence of a stated relationship will entitle the officer or employee to travel or allowance benefits; whereas, in other instances, the status of dependency must be a necessary accompaniment of a stated relationship. Executive Order 9805 speaks of "dependent parents of the employee", and Department of State Travel Regulations speak in part of "dependent parents" (including those not of the blood), and "dependent husband" (due to mental or physical disability). In relation to quarters, Circular A-8, Revised, makes no mention of the term "dependent" but uses the term "living with the employee at the foreign post", and Department of State Foreign Service Allowance Regulations define "family" recognizing relationship plus dependency in several categories, and, apparently, in part, construing the phrase, "living with the employee at the foreign post", synonymously with dependency. In relation to post allowance, the comments made with respect to quarters are applicable. It is clear from the above that the basic concept has been laid down by statute, and that the administrative implementation has been left to designated authorities, whose definitions or administration of terms are not always uniform or coextensive.
- 4. In passing, it is noted that the basic statues have referred to the term "family" and left the administrative implementation to designated authorities. In the past when Congress defined the term "dependent" to include parent, mother, or father, the Comptroller General has consistently held that had Congress intended more; i.e., other than natural parents, it would have expressly so provided. This principle of interpretation should likewise be followed in the interpretation of administration regulations unless otherwise clarified.
- 5. It has been held in establishing the dependency of a mother than in any case where the income and the value of other elements entering into the cost of living expenses regularly received by the mother from other sources is greater than the value of the contributions received from the officer, the mother is not dependent upon the officer for her chief support. (2 C.G.41) In a similar case, 20 C.G. 400, the Comptroller General had occasion to comment upon the term "dependent". Involved was Section 4 of the Act, 37 USCA 8, defining dependent as follows:

"That the term "dependent" as used in the succeeding sections of this Act shall include at all times and in all places a lawful wife and unmarried children under twenty-one years of age. It shall also include the mother of the officer provided she is in fact dependent on him for her chief support."

"In Rieger v. U.S., 69 Cl. Ch. 632, it was said at page 637, after quoting Section 4 of the Act:

"As was said by this court in Freeland v. United States, 69 C. Cls. 364:

'It is difficult to standardize the facts which disclose a condition designated in the law as "chief support" .

Each case must stand upon its own particular facts. No hard and fast rule can be laid down arbitrarily fixing the value of property owned, or the amount of income received by a mother, as entirely determinative of the question of whether she is dependent within the meaning of the statute.

We think the words "chief support" used in the statute should be given their ordinary and well-known meaning. "Chief" support means "main" support or "principal support. We think a mother is dependent for her "chief support" if some one clse is required to furnish most, or the greater part, of the funds necessary for her reasonable support."

The close correspondence between the phraseology of this quoted decision and certain language in the Foreign Service Allowance Regulations of the Department of State is to be noted. It is basic to a consideration of this matter, that the certifying officer must have supporting evidence sufficient to establish the status of dependency from a factual standpoint.

As has been illustrated, the Department of State has apparently limited the extension of the term "family" with respect to quarters and allowance by introducing the element of "dependency" in certain categories. On the other hand, under Circular A-8, the language of which at least is followed in Agency instructions, the stated relationship, plus actual residence with the employee at the foreign post, with nothing more, is sufficient to give rise to application for the benefits of quarters allowance, though the recipients of the cost of living allowance are supposedly limited administratively by the application of Schedules 1 and 2, Appendix III, Circular A-8.

With respect to cost of living allowance, however, the granting of the benefits results from the application of schedules which are based on "with dependents" or "without dependents". With respect to quarters allowances, however, there is no such qualification, either in the scales or in the regulations, where relationship and residence alone would appear to give rise to the benefits.

It may be for consideration in the administration of the above that the employee be required to establish a precxisting bona fide family relationship, as defined, prior to embarking for Foreign Service duty, or in other words, the phrase, "living with the employee at the foreigh post", should be a continuation of a prior dependent family relationship, as defined, and not a family accumulated for the purpose of acquiring statutory or regulatory benefits. It is recognized that circumstances may arise requiring an individual to assume the reins of the family from necessity. These are excluded from consideration.

- 6. The availability of administrative precedent and interpretation under present procedures is somewhat limited, and qualifications other than those discussed above may exist.
- 7. The Department of State application form for allowance of quarters and cost of living requires that the employee or officer entitled thereto indicate the percentage of dependency of each dependent claimed. This is particularly in line with the term "family" as defined in Foreign Service Allowance Regulations. The administrative implementation of Circular A-8 requires no such percentage breakdown. In both cases, however, no information other than a general certificate by the employee is required. In instances where the appropriate administrative official is confronted with a questionable case, or a percentage breakdown, or it is generally determined that a factual substantiation is desired, it may be desirable to require the employee to file an affidavit with the application for allowances, which affidavit might carry the following suggested topics:
 - a. That the member of the "family" is residing with the employee or officer not for the purpose of receiving any personal or pecuniary advantage, either in the way of increase in allowances, or otherwise.
 - b. That the relationship between employee or officer and member of his "family" is a continuation or a prior existing dependent family relationship, and not an acquired family for the purpose of being eligible for allowance benefits.

- "family status" is derived from Government and no reimbursement or recoupment therefor, directly or indirectly, in any manner or form whatever.
- d. Value and net income from all assets of dependent, real and personal, tangible and intengible.
- including contributions from member of family for one year proceding this affidavit.
- f. Average monthly living expense of dependent during last year.
- received by dependent from officer or employee claiming allowance.
- h. Other material facts tending to establish status of dependency.
- 8. The above elements are suggestive, of course, and undoubtedly can be expanded and others added. This office would be pleased to assist you in developing such documents as are considered necessary to evoke pertinent information.

Comeral Counsel

Individual Accountability for Exponditures of Special Funds

- 1. The question concerning relief of individuals from accountability for unvouchered expenditures, raised in your memorandum of 11 March, goes to the basic principles controlling the granting and use of Government funds for which no detailed accounting is made outside the Agency. No such question is pertinent in connection with normal vouchered Government expenditures, as there the statutes and regulations must be followed strictly, and any deviation either through mistake, bad judgment, or fraud, will cause the General Accounting Office to take an exception to all or part of the expenditure.
- 2. The Comptroller General is the official representative of Congress to review the expenditures of the executive departments and agencies and is responsible only to Congress. His ruling on the propriety of expenditures normally is final and may be, and occasionally is, in direct contravention of decisions of the federal courts. Neither he nor his agency, the General Accounting Office, has any direct collection power. He may only withhold any payments due from the Government, other than normal Government salaries during the period of employment, to offset against amounts he determines are due to the Government. However, an exception to a voucher implies liability both to the individual creating the obligation and to the officer who cortifies the voucher. If collection from the individual is indicated, the Conoral Accounting Office may demand payment but can enforce the demand against that individual only by reference of the case to the Department of Justice for collection through the courts.
- 5. The granting of unvouchered funds is a recognition by Congress that certain activities of the executive branch should not be scrutinized by GAO, their representative. The usual manner of making such a grant is to provide that the certification of the head of the agency concerned will be a sufficient voucher for the expenditures stated therein.

DEUTIE

The Congress has emphasized time and again that this places the entire responsibility on such agency head and on him alone. He may delegate administrative authority for the use and control of the funds, but he may not divest himself of responsibility. His certificate states that the expenditures set forth therein have been properly expended for authorized official activities of his agency. The Comptroller General cannot go behind this certification.

- 4. In theory, therefore, the Director of Central Intelligence has absolute power over the unvoyehered funds available to the Agency. Since he must return each year to Congress for additional funds and must submit a detailed budget to the Bureau of the Budget and the committees of Congress, it is obvious that, if there were not complete confidence in his administration of unvoyehered funds, no more would be fortheoming. His power, therefore, is limited by what is proper to support the authorized activities of the Agency.
- In the matter of this propriety, he has, of course, great latitude, but the discretion is, like the responsibility, his alone. To avoid the impossible task of checking each exponditure, he must set general rules and standards for the purposes for which he wishes unvouchered funds expended and . for the administration, control, and review of such expenditures. Once established, deviations from these standards may be made only with the Director's personal approval. It has been his stated policy that such approval is to be obtained in advance. There is no question, however, of his authority to approve an expenditure after it has been made. He has placed responsibility on his administrative officers and the Special Funds Division to see that expenditures come within his standards. Any question in their minds, they may refer to him or to this office, which, in general, acts comemhat as a Comptroller General but has morely an advisory function and no final authority to withhold payment.
- 6. In view of the responsibilities and administrative procedures outlined above, it is incumbent on each officer of CIA in charge of any operations to get approval in advance in accordance with the Director's regulations for any project requiring the expenditure of unvouchered funds, except there such advance approval is patently impossible. CIA Administrative Instruction 60-2 specifies that all projects involving the expenditure of funds not provided for in the regular budget shall be reviewed in advance by the Projects Review Committee for recommendation to the Director. Projects Within ONO are not submitted in detail, and the ADSO is given wide discretion to approve specific projects from funds allocated to his office with the approval of the Director.

Prosumbly, any project initiated by you would be within the scope of your office, as set forth by the Director and the ABSO. No expenditures could be made until the project had been approved by the APSO, and upon emenditure, your office would be required to submit accountings which would be audited in the Special Funds Division and, if proper, would be certified for payment. The payment when made would be entered on a schodule of disbursceionts which are periodically totaled and vouchers for the amounts involved prepared for each agent-cashier. This blanket voucher is then submitted to the Director, who signs a certificate thereon stating that payment has been made for proper purposes, the nature of which cannot be revealed for reasons of security in the national interest. This is the cortification behind which GAO cannot go. By signing it, in effect, the Director assumes personal responsibility for the propriety of all exponditures stated therein.

As pointed out above, he may not divest himself of, or delegate, this responsibility, and the only relief for him would be a showing of fraud on the part of one of his subordinates of which he could not be expected to have knowledge. In the absence of fraud, it is our opinion that this certification administratively settles all questions of bad judgment or error resulting in actions such as the examples mentioned in your memorandum of 11 March. based on the theory that the Director has available enough checks so that the question of judgment or error, if it existed, would be raised. Thus, he has his auditors, certifying officers, Special Funds officer, the ABSO, the Executive for Inspection. and Security, and the Concral Counsel's office, all with a right to question any doubtful expenditure. If a question is raised, the Director can do only two things -- he may either refuse to approve the individual's voucher and indicate that the individual should be held personally liable, or may condone and approve the expenditure, thereby assuming responsibility for mintever question there may be as to propriety of the expenditure. Once he has approved the payment, it is diffiault to see how, as a practical matter, the subordinate could be held personally liable. The Comptroller Conoral and the CAO are bound by law to account the Director's certification. The Department of Justice would have no way of obtaining jurisdiction unless a charge of fraud were referred to it.

9. A Congressional committee could concolvably question the transaction, but this point is confused by the undetermined problem of the release of documents and information in the custody of the executive branch to the legislative branch. practice, the pertinent information would not normally be released to thom, nor would they try to force it. Assuming, however, that a committee obtains the facts and questioned the judgment of a CIA employed, they cannot of themselves take action to impose liability. They could refer the natter to the Department of Justice, who would be bound, we feel, to. accept the administrative determination of the head of this Agency. Ivan assuming that the Department of Justice took the matter to the courts for imposition of liability, there is an interesting and unresolved question of whether any sourt could, or would, hear the matter. Two decisions of the Supreme Court in cases arising out of employment of spies during the Civil War indicate not. In both cases, the spy claimed he had been promised more than had been paid to him. In its first holding (Totton, Administrator vs. U. S.; 92 U. S. 105, 10 April 1876), the Supreme Court stated that inasmich as the whole transaction had its inception in secrecy in the interest of national occurity, "Both employer and agent must have understood that the lips of the other were to be forever scaled respecting the relation of either to the matter. Therefore, "The secreoy which such contracts impose procludes any action for their enforcement."

"It may be stated as a general principle, that public policy forbids the maintenance of any suit in a court of justice, the trial of which would inevitably lead to the disclosure of matters which the law regards as confidential, and respecting which it will not allow the confidence to be violated. On this principle, suits cannot be maintained which would require a disclosure of the confidences of the confessional, or those between husband and wife, or of communications by a client to his counsel for professional advice or of a patient to his physician for a similar purpose. Such greater reason exists for the application of the principle to cases of contract for secret services with the government, as the existence of a contract of that kind is itself a fact not to be disclosed."

In the later case (De Armaud vs. U. S.; 151 U. S. 485, 29 January 1894), the Supreme Court apparently qualified its position on the point of jurisdiction. Since there were two other valid defenses not involving scorecy, it dismissed on those grounds rather than rule that no action could be brought. But the Court specifically said that the doctrine of the Totten case was not impugned, and if they had found it necessary to rule on the point, they would have difficulty distinguishing the two cases on De Armaud's claim that he was a "military expert", not a "spy". Included in the opinion is a quote (p. 490) from the report of the Auditor to the Second Comptrollers

"Accounting officers have no jurisdiction to open up a settlement made by the War Department from secret service funds and determine unliquidated damages."

10. It will be noted that both of these cases are suita against the Government. Two modern holdings, however, indieate that the Supreme Court's attitude has not changed in this respect. In U. S. va. Curties-Wright Export Corporation. (209 U. S. 304, 21 December 1936), the defendant was prosecuted for violating an Executive Order preventing export of arms under a joint resolution of Congress, which made disregard of such an Order a crime. The defense contended that the delegation to the President by joint resolution of discretionary power to control such exports was unconstitutional. The Courtdiscussed at length the division of powers under the Constitution and the responsibility of the Executive Branch for Foreign Affairs. It pointed out, for the maintenance of international relations, Congress must often accord to the President a degree of discretion and freedom from statutory restriction which would not be permissible were domestic affairs alone involved. The Court stated!

"Horeover, he, not Congress, has the better opportunity of knowing the conditions which prevail in foreign countries, and especially is this true in time of war. He has his confidential sources of information. He has his agents in the form of diplomatic, consular and other efficials. Secrecy in respect of information gathered by them may be highly necessary, and the premature disclosure of it productive of harmful results."

The above case is quoted with approval in the recent case of Chicago and Southern Airlines against Waterman Steamship Corporation (60 Supreme Court 431, 9 February 1948), wherein the Court was asked to review an order of the Civil Aeronautics Board on an application to engage in overseas and foreign air transportation. The Civil Aeronautics Act authorized judicial review. The Court held that in spite of the blanket authorimation, the courts properly limited themselves to review only cortain fields. In particular, it said that where such a Board as the CAB changed its orders at the direction of the President, citing as cause cortain factors relating to the national velfare and other ratters for which the Chief Executive has special responsibility, the Court would not review those changes. The opinion stated in parts

"The President, both as Commander-in-Chief and as the Ration's organ for foreign affairs, has available intelligence services whose reports neither are nor ought to be published to the world. It would be intolorable that courts, without the relevant information, should review and perhaps nullity actions of the Executive taken on informa-tion hold scoret. Nor can courts sit in camera in order to be taken into Executive confidences. But oven if courts could require full disclosure, the very nature of Executive decisions as to foreign policy is political, not judicial o o a. decisions of a king for which the Judiciary has neither applitude, facilities nor responsibility and have long been held to belong in the dorain of political power not subject to judicial intrusion or inquiry."

Il. We feel that it is clearly indicated by the above four cases that the courts will not hear matters arising out of the confidential operations of the executive branch in connection with foreign intelligence. We realize that there are a certain number of its and buts in the above discussion, but it is our considered opinion that once the Director has assumed the responsibility, it would be, as a practical ratter, impossible for any other officer or agency of the Government to impose a personal liability on an employee of CIA in the absence of fraud.

12. Aside from the straight expenditure of funds, there is, of course, the problem of responsibility for valuable equipment which may be lost as the result of a risky operation. Assume the risk was so great that the jeopardizing of equipment raised the question of bad judgment. Here again, the project would need proper approval, and upon establishment of the loss, the case would be referred to the Property Survey Board of OSO. This Board would make its findings and would recommend to the AUSO. He has been delegated authority by the Director to relieve responsible or accountable officers in his discretion. If he refused so to relieve the employee, the latter could appeal to the Director. If cleared either by the Director or by the ADSO, under his delegated authority, we know of no way by which any outside officer or agency could go behind this administrative determination to impose pseumiary liability. There are many parallels to this situation, particularly in the Military Establishment. I am not sware of any case of liability being imposed for bad judgment alone, without fraud, when the administrative relief has been approved. In addition to security aspects, the head of any executive department is authorized to make regulations for control of property and determination as to individual fault in the event of loss or destruction (31 U. S. C. A. 89 and 82).

1. Attached herewith is the complete file in the accident case of driver of a CIA car which 25x149a atruck a taxicab in Maryland.

Accident case of

2. This case has been before you before, but was returned by you to the investigating officer to determine the legal speed limit at the point of accident and to secure additional information as to possible negligence on the part 25%1A9a of the CIA driver, passenger in the CIA car at the time of the accident, and find that he now has changed several of the statements in his undated newscanding thich was forwarded in the original file.

Helwing reaffirms the fact that the driver was going no more than 30 miles per hour and at what, to him appeared to be a reasonable speed under the circumstances.

States, 25X1A9a hence, that his original statement that the tank was about "200 feet" cheed was an error and should have read "20 feet" also disclaims any recollection as to whether or not 25X1A9a has light "had just turned red" or was still green. He does state that the driver's application of his brakes was useless, as they did not hold on the slippery pavement.

As the accident in question occurred in Maryland, Maryland law and cases would be controlling. In reaching your conclusions on the facts in this case, the question that you must decide is whether the CIA driver exercised due care under the circumstances. The first of these circumstances to consider is the question as to whether the CIA driver's rate of cred was excessive, considering the weather and traffic conditions. The second of these circumstances involves the question as to whether, in view of the conditions of the road, he was justified in following so closely upon the taxicab trailing the latter on his own admission at about 15 or 20 - 25x1/fest. If you find that the was not driving at an excessive rate of speed, and that he was not following too closely upon the taxicab under existing conditions, and that under these conditions his car was under proper control, the claim of the taxicab camer must be rejected on the grounds that there is not sufficient evidence available upon which CIA liability can be predicated. If, on the other hand, you find that there is negligence on the part of the CIA driver, then the taxical claim must be considered.

occurred is reported by the investigating officer to be 30 miles an hour. The CIA driver, states that he was "travelling at 20, 22, and 25 miles per hour" stepping up his speed to between 25 and 30 miles an hour to pass two vehicles shortly before striking the taxicab. His passenger, as set out in Par. 3 above, stated that he did not think the driver was going over 30 keV.

25X1A substantiated in a conversation with the undersigned. Therefore, from all available testimony, the did not exceed the legal speed limit.

Maryland Motor Vehicle Law (Acts of 1943, Ch. 1007, Sec. 157) provides that - "No person shall drive a vehicle on a highway at a greater speed than is ressonable and prudent under the conditions than emisting."

It is therefore necessary for you to determine whether the CIA driver was driving not only within the speed limit, but also at a speed that was "reasonable and predent" at the time of the accident, all weather and traffic conditions being considered.

6. The Motor Vehicle Law of Maryland states that (Acts of 1943, Ch. 1007, Sec. 169(a)) -

"The driver of a motor vehicle shall not follow mother vehicle more closely than is reasonable and prudent, having due regard for the speed of such vehicles and the traffic upon and the condition of the highway."

The basic duty in this connection has been stated as "the duty of the rear driver to keep a safe distance between vehicles, and to keep his machine wall in hand, so as to avoid doing injury to the machine shead. . " (Enligy: 3-4 Automobile Law 195 (9th ed.))

This rule is further elaborated to hold that -

"The only rule that can govern the interval to be maintained is that of reasonable care under the circumstances. The more fact that a validle is moving in close prominity and keeping up with it does not of itself constitute negligance."

(2 Blackfield: Cyclopaedia of Automobile Law, Sec. 942).

statement is that he was travelling between 15 and 20 feet behind the taxicab at the time of the accident. His passenger testifies that the distance was also approximately 20 feet. It is therefore necessary for you to determine whether under the given circumstances as to traffic and meather conditions at the time and place of the accident, the distance between the two cars should be considered "reasonable and prudent" within Sec. 169(a) of the Maryland Motor Vehicle Law.

tend to indicate that put on his passenger 25X1A9a that this was useless for quick stemping due to the icy condition of the road. The brakes evidently did not hold impediately, with the result that the CIA car skidded into the taxical.

In a lessing Maryland case involving skidding on a wet street, (Fillings v. Dichlann, 168 Md. 306, 177 Atl. 327 (1955)) the Maryland Court of Appends stated -

"It is conceded and indisputable, that the skidding of an automobile is not in itself sufficient to justify an inference of negligent operation. . . . But such an inference is permissible when the skidding results from the driver's negligent disregard of conditions by which such a risk is created or increased."

In another case in the Maryland Court of Appeals, (Baltimore Transit Company v. Alexander, 172 Md. 454, 192 Atl. 349 (1937)), 16 Las pointed out that operator of a motor vehicle requires that he have the vehicle under such control. that the vehicle may be storped if necessary to avoid a collision. the control must be a reasonable control, depending upon the circumstances and not an absolute control so that the motor vehicle may be stopped immediately under all circumstances.

Traffic regulations permit a speed which makes it impracticable for even a motor vehicle of low tomage to be stopped instantly. The law of physics will not permit it."

In the case of Vissimi v. Dorldin, 176 Mi. 639, 6 Atl. 2d 637 (1939) there the real that it would by rain, sleet and freezing conditions, the Maryland Court of Appeals stated.

When weather conditions or darkness are such as to interfer with or shorten the view of the road, it only serves to increase the degree or care required of a driver

(1937), the Court stated tune - 173 Ma. 103, 194 Atl. 832

"Skidding is not in itself, and without more, evidence of negligence, ... nor is more speed, certainly within lamful limits, apart from the circumstances in commection with which it is considered ordinarily evidence of negligence. Both take color and significance from the facts and circumstances which attend them, and either may be evidence of negligence. Skidding may be evidence of negligence if it appears that it was caused by a failure to take reasonable precaution to avoid it when the conditions at the time made such a result probable in the absence of such pre-Speed may be evidence of negligence where it appears that under the circumstances it was likely to endenger others who were in the exercise of due care. The modern automobile, because of its speed, weight, power, and design and the operation of physical laws, is peculiarly subject to the danger of uncontrollable and erratic devictions from its ordinary course. Since it is hald on its course by the traction between its tires and the read surface, thatever lessons that traction makes it more difficult to control, and increases the hazard of its skidding. That tendency, because of the power, weight, and potential speed of such machines, carries a constant throat to all users of modern highways and imposes upon the drivers of automobiles the duty of exercising at all times care and vigilance to avoid increasing the denger of elifting erected by any condition of the road surface which lessens the traction or grip of the mechine on it by excepting the management of the car to the conditions. It is a matter of common knowledge chargeable to every one the operates an automobile on a public highest that the danger of shidding on a set slippury surface increases as the speed increases. And not only does the probability of skidding increase under such conditions as the speed increases, but the seriousness of the possible consequences to other users of the highest increases proportionately. It is also obvious that any sudden smorving from a straight line by an automobile driven at high speed over a vet slippery street increases the probability of skidding, and that the driver is therefore under a constant duty to use all reasonable care to discover and avoid conditions which may require such a movement.

Applying these principles to the facts of the care, there can be no reasonable doubt that the cyldence was sufficient to support a finding that the collision was caused by the defendant's negligence. In valuing the sufficiency of the cyldence for that purpose, the truth of so much of it as tends to support that hypothesis, together with such inferences as may naturally and legitimately be deduced therefrom, must be assumed.

- 25X1A9a 8. It is therefore necessary for you to determine whether conduct was inconsistent with the exercise of that degree of care thich the law required of him under the circumstances, or whether it was sufficient in law to permit the inference that his management of his car was not the direct and proximate cause of the collision.
 - 9. To recontulate, it will be necessary for you, in the light of the above, to reach your determination upon certain basic questions in order to determine whether or not the negligent to a degree which would make this Agency liable for the taxical claim.

of language and the ensuing controversy might have been eliminated by the inscrtion after the phrase, "it shall be the duty of the Agency", the following words: "and the Director is hereby empowered", or some other such phrase indicating the intent of Congress that the Director was to have a controlling voice in the coordination, subject to the direction of the National Security Council.

d. The collection functions of CIA are provided for only in the general provision, "to perform, for the benefit of existing intelligence agencies, such additional services of common condern as the National Security Council determines can be more efficiently accomplished centrally and to perform such other functions and duties related to intelligence affecting the National Security as the National Security Council may from time to time direct". It is known that Congress intended by these phrases to insure central of clandestine intelligence by CIA but considered that security aspects prevented its being spelled out in the language of the law. Lack of such specific direction may be considered a weakness in the National Security Act of 1947 that deserves further consideration by the Congress.

l. As head of an independent executive agency, you are authorized to establish rules and regulations for the protection and control of Government property. Under this authority, you have established the 50 Property Survey Board, whose action is normally final in clear-cut cases. In all cases, however, and particularly in borderline situations, you have final power to relieve or certify to liability.

Where the head of an agency has relieved a responsible or accountable officer, I an aware of no case where, in the absence of fraud, there has been a subsequent attempt by any other branch of the Government to hold the individual liable. On the other hand, your cortification as to liability would normally be accepted by the other departments and agencies of the Government.
- J. The situation here, of the joep being stolen from a private parking place, is a familiar one. The circumstances in each case vary, indicating negligence to a greater or loss degree. The point where negligence becomes sufficient to impose liability is one of the most difficult of all logal points to determine, and in the courts is frequently left to the jury. But the judge may instruct the jury somewhat as follows:

If an ordinary reasonable men, in the circumstances here described, should have realized that his actions might lead to a loss of this type and such loss did then occur as the direct result of his acts, or failure to act, he may then be held liable for the loss.

4. This case has received careful consideration, and there is no indication that there are any further facts or extenuating circumstances to be considered. Since each case is so definitely affected by local conditions, considerable weight should be given to the original Report of Survey. The main point brought out in his appeal is that since he had parked under similar circumstances before, he had no reason to feel that the attendant would not fully safeguard the vehicle. In view of this, the real question is: Was he reasonable in such a belief, or should he have realized that in the local circumstances then prevailing, his precautions were not adequate? SUBJECT:

Use of Appropriated Funds for Payment for Services of a Personal Nature

- l. The availability of current appropriations for the payment of salaries of mess personnal and the probably purchase of facilities for the use and benefit of personne 25X1A7b assigned to areas outside the continental United States has informally been considered by this office.
- 2. It may be stated as a general rule that the use of appropriated funds for objects not specifically set forth in the Appropriation Act is unauthorized unless it follows by necessary implication that the object not specified bears a direct connection with and is essential to the accomplishment of the purposes for which the funds were appropriated. (CG B-73234)
- 3. That the availability of appropriations for the purposes here concerned is unauthorized, in the absence of express stipulation, is clear from (i) decision of the Comptroller General, (ii) language of the current appropriations acts, (iii) the application of general prohibiting statutes.
 - a. In 13 CG 49, the extension of the officers' mess, Navy Department, from shipboard to shore, under compelling reasons, evoked the following comments from the Comptroller General:

"As hereinbefore stated, there is no law or legal regulation which recognizes officers' messes as of a public character, and the inhi-hibition in question in the current appropriation act is intended to stop the practice of detailing enlisted men to prepare and serve food to officers' messes not recognized or authorized by law or legal regulation. If the officers are required or permitted to subsist themselves ashore, it is a private mess notwithstanding the officers may technically be Decision A-38907, December 1, on sea duty. 1931. The purpose of the inhibition on pay and allowances of enlisted men in the proviso in question, as shown in the legislative history and the status of the law then in force, is to prohibit the detail of enlisted men and civilians in naval service to perform for officers duty of a private or personal character as contrasted with public duty."

In the same decision, the Comptroller General, quoting from Williams v. United States, 44 Ct. Cls. 175, emphasized the difference between shipboard and voluntary messes, and the necessity of positive legislation in the matter:

"Section 1115 and 1120, Navy Regulations of 1900, as well as 1905, have reference only to officers' mess on board ship, and whatever practice may have grown up respecting the detail of enlisted men on shipboard to prepare and serve food to the officers thereof can have no application to officers' mess on shore, nor is there any law authorizing the regulation of officers' mess on shore. Officers on shore are at liberty to get their meals when and how they please, and if for economical reasons or otherwise unite in forming a mess on shore that is their own concern and no regulation respecting it other than that of their own making is required, and membership therein is entirely optional with them."

b. The use of appropriated funds for the furnishing of personnel and facilities for the operation of messes, all things being equal, does not flow by necessary implication, nor is it tenable on the basis of a specific appropriation justifying reasonable and necessary incidental expenditures essential to the accomplishment thereof. Specific purpose language is not discoverable in the current appropriation which would warrant a characterization of the subject concerned as a reasonable and necessary incidental. Moreover, the fact that the work of the has been carried on since its inception without such special services demonstrates that the proposed expenditures are not essentially requisite to the accomplishment of the statutory purposes of the appropriations available to CIA, and, obviously, were not within the general contemplation of such appropriations. Where Congress clearly intends that an appropriation shall be available for mess service and facilities, it does so by express language. A recent appropriation act serves further to confirm the principle that where benefits not strictly of a public nature are involved, the express authorization of Congress is required:

25X1A7b

"Public Law 597 - 80th Congress. Title I - Foreign Service Salaries and Expenses, F.S. * * and the operation and maintenance of commissary and mess service (not to exceed $200,000) without regard to section 3709 of the Revised Statutes, as amended; * * *"

"Public Law 573 - 80th Congress * * * (a) furnishing food and shelter, without repayment therefor, to employees of the Government assigned to Arctic stations; * * *"

4. Particularly in point is 20 CG 601 which involved a question raised by the Navy Department whereby it wished to make available the appropriation for "General Expenses, Marine Corps", for expenditure for supplying necessary maid, cook, and personal services other than janitor services for the New Navy Nurses Quarters, Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va. In a letter to the Comptroller General, the Navy Department wrote:

" * * * The Appropriation "General Expenses, Marine Corps, for the current fiscal year, as contained in the Naval Appropriation Act, approved June 11, 1940, (Pub. No. 588), is in terms available "For * * * personal and other services, and for other incidental expenses for the Marine Corps not otherwise provided for."

"The old Navy nurses' quarters at the Marine Barracks, Quantico, Va., were small, consisting approximately of six rooms, whereas the new Navy Nurses Quarters at that place include a large living room, dining room, kitchen, basement, first and second floor corridors, and fourteen nurses' rooms. The nurses occupying the old nurses' quarters were furnished janitor services, but maid, cook, and personal services other than janitor were furnished by the nurses themselves. * * * "

5. Revised Statute, Section 1765, 2000, provides:

"No officer in any branch of the public service, or any other person whose salary, pay, or emoluments are fixed by law or regulations, shall receive any additional pay, extra allowance, or compensation in any form whatever, for the disbursement of public money, or for any other service or duty whatever, unless the same is authorized by law, and the appropriation therefore explicitly states that it is for such additional pay, extra allowance, or compensation."

- 6. In applying this statute, the Comptroller General 'stated:
 - " * * * To provide at this time and without further authorization from the Congress, maid service, cooks, and other personal services (not otherwise described) in addition to the quarters would be in contravention of Section 1765, Revised Statutes. * * * "
- 7. Should the subject matter of this memoranda be raised informally, the above discussion would require that this office advise similarly.

8. This memorandum does not consider the Act of March 5, 1928, c. 126 S. 3, 45 Stat. 193, 5 U.S.C.A. Sect. 75 a., which provides that the head of an executive department may, in his judgment, on certain conditions, furnish civilians employed in the field service with quarters, heat, light, household equipment, subsistence, and laundry service, the reasonable value of such allowances to be determined and considered as part of the compensation in fixing the salary rate of such employees.

- I. Except where maintenance of cover requires special procedures, has followed the policy of treating overwars employees on the same basis as other normal government employees outside of the foreign service. This treatment includes pay, allowances, leave and travel. Standardized Government travel regulations prohibit travel while on leave at government expense. Consequently, employees stationed everseas who want to take leave in the United States have to pay the expenses back here and out again for themselves and families. The widness for this situation has long been recognized by Congress in provicing for statutory home leave for Foreign ervice officers and staff after themselves mandatows.
- has applied the authority of the designess in order to maintain cover, but comployees have been subject to 25X1A8 formandised Government Travel Regulations. The inequity and inadvisability is obvious. Consequently, a provision similar to the Foreign Ecryice Act statutory leave section was included in the proposed CIA legislation. If passed, it would apply to all CIA employees. The Comptroller General agreed to the need for such authority (subject to a minor amendment with which we are in complete agreement) and both committees in Congress approved the provision without question. No objection was raised when the Senate passed the bill and we are not aware of any objection in the House. Technically, however, we have no legal basis for authorizing statutory leave.
- months tour and wish to come home with their families for leave. At personal expense, the cost is prohibitive. Employees could be brought home on temperary duty for reorientation and training with incidental leave, but family travel could not then be at government expense. The alternative is a permanent change of station either on reassignment or for termination, but the employees are unted at and munt to go to the same posts to which they are now assigned. Any other arrangements made in an attempt to conform with Standardized Government fravel Regulations would be mere subterfuges which would be apparent on the special.
- 4. Forwarded with this paper is a momorandum of a recent discussion with the General Counsel to the Comptroller General. As noted therein, he was specifically informed that certain authorities in the bill might have to be exercised duplies the failure of its passage and would, if you determined it to be necessary, be exercised on unvoushered funds, since he would be forced to object if we believe he understood the probable necessity for prob action, although specific problems were not discussed, and that although the give formal approval, he would be inclined to support us in case justication were ever to be required, at least in these cases where the necessity is adequately shown.

for the above, we feel that a finding by you that how leave at government expense for eversons employees is necessary for the conduct of complications would be justifiable, even without other clear logal 25X1A8a backs for such expenditures. If you so find and wish to authorize home leave, we shall assist in drafting an amendment to the Special Funds Regulations, 25X1A8a controlizing the to order compleyees permanently stationed eversors home posed CIA bill, unless their cover requires different handling.

Proposed Transfer of Henovox Recording Machines to the Dopartment of State

- 1. In regard to War Assets Administration letter to this Agoncy. dated 14 June 1948, the following comments are submitted for your information and guidance.
- The War Assets Administration is the "disposal agency" for this type of natorial. Since we have the concurrence of that agency, a direct transfer to the Department of State is legally proper provided the material falls within the definitions of Section 1/4 (b) of the Surplus Property Act. This Section provides that, subject to specific restriction by War Assets (which apparently does not exist here), "any owning agency may dispose of - any property which is damaged or worn beyond economical repairs
 - any waste, salvage, scrap, or other similar items;
 - any product of industrial, research, acricultural or livestock operations, or of any public works construction or maintenance project carried on by such agency;

which does not consist of strategic ninerals and motals, as defined in Section 22.

J. It seems, therefore, that this Agency should make an administrative determination of whether or not the machines fall within the scope of Section 14 (b) - and particularly subsections (b)(1) and (b)(2). Your conclusion in this respect will be proper from a legal standpoint. The restriction regarding strategic minerals and metals does not expear to be applicable.

MEMORANDUM TO THE FILES

SUBJECT: Reimbursement By the Government From Its Negligent Employees.

Case No. 00038 involved an accident which was occasioned by the negligent act of a Government employee, and resulted in damages to a Government-owned vehicle, as well as a privately owned vehicle.

The facts of record appear to establish a prima facie case of recklessness or gross negligence on the part of the employee, for which reason the CIA Property Survey Board has conditionally recommended that the individual be held pecuniarily liable in the sum of $98.90 for damages to the Government-owned vehicle, as well as the cost of repairs for the privately-owned vehicle.

The Survey Board has made a conditional recommendation for the following reasons:

- a. The language of present administrative regulations authorizes the imposition of pecuniary liability solely on the basis of damage to public property;
- b. The evidence submitted by the investigating officer may possibly be supplemented; and
- c. The language of a memorandum dated 28 October 1947 from the General Counsel to the Chief of Finance on the general subject here concerned, appears to have suggested a difference of interpretation by the Members of the Survey Board.

The scope of this memorandum is restricted to a continuation of the final paragraph of said memorandum, in order to resolve any questions of interpretation which may have arisen.

An almost identical case caused the Secretary of Agriculture to write to the Attorney General, requesting a clarification of his authority to proceed against negligent Government employees who had caused damage to privately owned vehicles. In 40 Attorney General 9 dated 25 March 1941, the Attorney General stated that it was the intention of Congress that the Government should assume the burden under the Negligence Act of 28 December 1922, 31 U.S.C.A. 215, and that it was not its intent that the burden should be shifted to the employee.

The Attorney General continued with a review of this general subject and emunciated certain principles which are for consideration in future cases of the type here involved.

As a general rule, it may be stated that in the absence of statutory suthority, express or implied, an officer or employee of the Government may not be administratively deprived of his compensation. (38 Court of Claims 341, 245 U.S. 383, 8 Fed. 2nd. 669, 34 Attorney General 574.) The aforesaid authorities also stand for the principle that if such a collection were attempted to be enforced, the employee would undoubtedly be entitled to his day in court, as in other claims asserted by the United States Government against its citizens.

The only basis of collection suggested by the Attorney General is one involving the acquiescence of the employee.

The Attorney General, in reviewing the legislative history of the Negligence Act, referred to the case of Ponnis v. the United States, 2 Court of Claims 210, which involved a negligent act causing liability on the part of numerous Government employees. Upon being held responsible for their act, which was performed within the scope of their employment, general statutes of relief were passed by Congress on the principle that the burden should be assumed by the Government.

278 U.S. 41, and other cases not referred to in this memorandum, reflect that the Congress has, by general legislation, progressively assumed liability to persons sustaining injury through the negligence of its officers or employees and has not made provision for the assertion of claims by the Government against its negligent employees. The Attorney General, in the cited case, concluded that in the absence of statutory authority, there was no power to enforce a collection against a negligent employee and suggested that the administrative remedies in the form of disciplinary action, including suspension and dismissal, were probably sufficient.

from regarding the delegation to other Covernment agencies of the function of auditing contractor's records in connection with CIA contracts, and the accompanying referral from to the Executive for A & M dated 29 July 1948. The basic memorandum requests, in Paragraph 4(c), advice on the question as to whether the GAO will "afford relief to CIA in the settlement of a contract on which the audit functions have been performed by another agency not under the jurisdiction of CIA."

- 2. The question as to whether the GAO will "afford relief to CIA" in this connection cannot be answered in this form, as no prediction can be made as to GAO's reaction to the settlement of a specific contract before questions on that contract have been raised.
- 3. It is believed that the intent of the question raised by Paregraph 4(c) is whether the GAO will accept an audit of a CIA contract by an Agency other than CIA. The question seeks to ascortain whether there are any legal objections to such delegation of this auditing function.
- 4. This Office sees no legal objection to such delegation. This appears to be a recognized practice in the Government. It is the opinion of Mr. Bell, Chief of the Audit Division of the GAO, that no objection would be raised by the GAO to this practice. This assumes, however, that the auditing will be done by another Government agency and not by an outside contractor. It appears to be the practice, particularly among components of the military establishment, that whichever department of the Government has the greatest amount of contractual business in a given city or area will handle the audits for other departments in the same area.

5. This opinion is addressed to the legal question raised by Paragraph 4(c) and does not in any way consider the problems raised in Paragraphs 3(a)-(e) of memorandum, which are outside the jurisdiction of this Office.

WBJECT: Tort Claims in Favor of the Government

- 1. Tort claims against the Government are regulated by the Federal Tort Claims Act. There is no specific provision, however, in the statutes or appropriate opinions of the Comptroller General in regard to collection of tort claims in favor of the Government by agencies other than GAO or Justice.
- 2. The problem of handling tort claims that seems to be clearly in favor of the Government was discussed today with Mr. McKinley of the Comptroller General's office. There have occasionally been and will certainly continue to be small claims in favor of the Government resulting from automotive accidents. When the case is apparently in our favor, and the damages are liquidated, Mr. McKinley saw no objection to our processing the claim and attempting to secure a recovery of the cost. No arbitrary monetary ceiling was established, but the advisability of action by this Agency alone will be left to our discretion. If the case presents any question on the actual amount of damages involved, or if a negotiated settlement appears implausible, the case will be forwarded to the General Accounting Office for collection and possible negotiation by Justice.

the propriety of reimbursing an employee for his dependent's travel in the following situation:

25X1A9a vas assigned to this 25X1A6a organization in in a military status from February. 1946, until June, 1947. At the latter date, he was mustered out of the Army in and entered on our rolls in a 25X1A6a -civilian capacity. In computing time with this organization. the employee's arry service was included. Employee was thus eligible for transfer or return to the United States in August, 1947. In December, 1947, he married 25X1A9a who was then an alien. Continuance of the employee's work was approved, and, in fact, specifically desired for a new tour of duty. Employee agreed in writing to remain at his job in for eighteen months after his wife joined 25X1A6a him there. And, for the convenience of the Government, he agreed to undertake the extended tour ulthout first returning to the United States. His wife had been denied 25X1A6a admission to hovever, because of her alien status, and she came to the United States in the spring of this year to obtain American citizenship. She took her oath on I June 1948, and then joined her husband in 25X1A6a Her trans-25X1A6a portation to was raid by this agency, and the question of whether such payment is authorized under present regulations has now been raised.

- 2. Section 6.1 (a) of Part VI of Special Funds Regulations provides that travel payment to employees from Special Funds will conform to the requirements of P.L. 600. 79th Congress, 2nd Session, approved 2 August 1946, the regulations insued thereunder, Standardised Government Travel Regulations, and Bureau of the Budget Circular 4-7. P.L. 600 provides that, in certain circumstances, dependent's transportation will be paid by the Government when the employee is a new appointse or when the employee is transferred from one station to another in the interest of the Government.
- dents from the United States to his first post, from one post to another outside the United States, and for return to the United States, and for return to the United States, can be paid by the Covernment under the authority of P.L. 600 and T.O. 9778. Such travel cannot be for the convenience of the individual, however, and must be a natural concemitant to transfer of the employee on other than temporary duty. The right of the dependent to travel at the Covernment's expense depends on the transfer of the employee on other than temporary duty. The right of the dependent to travel at the Government's expense depends on the transfer of the employee, and the vife's right to travel is not independent of the husband's. (C.O. 5-175). Such independent travel would be permissible only where Congress has specifically provided for it (C.G. 21-711), and there is no indication of such sanction here. The dependent's travel does not have to be simulatineous, of course, and can precede or follow that of an employee (C.O. 18-971) - slways provided, of course, that there is travel by the employee.

is entitled to reinbursement for his wife's transportation to the United States on his change of station to the United States. (8.6.

25X1A9a

5. It has been suggested that the agreement to extend Mr. employment should be treated as a new appointment. In C.G. 5-175(177), the Comptroller General stated that:

Reimbursement for transportation of a wife as for travel to an initial post of duty can only be allowed when it is the officer's initial post of duty on an original appointment, or an assignment to a post after a change in class or grade such as would constitute a new appointment.....

A change in salary or grade may not necessarily be controlling. however. (C.G. 10-874).

sented in this case. Since the employee never left his station, it cannot be designated a "transfer". Without travel by the employee, there is no independent right to reinbursement for his dependent's travel unless it can be considered a "new appointment," and such an interpretation of the extension in employment cannot be accepted in view of the facts. If the facts stated above are correct, the payment of travel to 25X1A62 from this country were purely personal, and, unfortunately, amounted to a more gratuity which was illegal regardless of what funds were used. Unless additional facts are produced which change the present picture, it is our opinion that there is no enthority for payment of travel expenses under those circumstances. The file is accordingly returned to the certifying afficer for appropriate action.

One of the spaces is between "M" and "Q" and the other is between "Q" and Constitution. has been investigating the situation, and as the result of his questions, he has received the attached letter from PBA. He then requested a ruling as to whether the suggestions in this letter could be carried out if they were falt to be desirable. 2. We have discussed the situation with Budget and Pinance Branch and feel that the proposal cannot be carried out at this time. We do not have appropriation language justifying expenditures for improvements of this type on property not under our control, even though it is Government property. While the improvement would be for our immediate advantage, it would still be in essence an improvement on land belonging to another agency and, therefore, an expense not chargeable to our appropriation. Since it is not an unforseon situation of an emergency nature, it would not be an appropriate charge to contingency funds under the Director's control. 3. If the improvements are felt to be highly desirable, the proper method would be to include them as specific items in the 1950 budget. The question whether we should ask for such an appropriation or wiether we should support a request by the other agencies involved will have to be considered if performance of the work is desired. - In considering this case, we make one assumption which is not clearly shown in the record. In the document which we shall call the contract, which is the 25X1A7a temporary appointment of 29 December 1926, the provision for salary states that the per month would be in 25X1A6a accordance with an additional written agreement. We assume that this additional agreement was either a copy of what we shall call the Military Attache's contract of 1 July 1946 or a substantially similar document. In either case, we think the situation is essentially simple.
- 2. At the time these guards were taken on by the Hilitary Attache, they all became menthly employees, at least within the concept of the law. The Hill. 25X1A6a tary Attache's contract specified that the Chaffirs constituted the Party of the Second Part. A copy of the contract indicates that all three signed and affixed their fingerprints. Therefore, withough was named 25X1A9a as Representative and Payee, there was privity of contract between each one and the Government.
- porary appointment by cm 29 December altered the 25X1A7a casential relationship, particularly if, as we assume, it incorporated the original payment agreement by reference. Consequently, we agree with the Chief, Badget and Finance that on termination they will be entitled to indemity from 1 July 1946 to the date of separation, including the thirty days notice period. We also concurtant on termination each guard should be required to sign a release upon payment.
- d. It is our further opinion that each guard was entitled during this full period to fifteen days! leave per year in accordance with limited law and that this 25X4A6a leave could have been administratively increased in accordance with local custom. Since there is no requirement in the law that this leave be carried over and accrued in successive years, again local custom should be followed.

25X1A7a Since we feel that the transcontract did not change the essential situation, we do not believe that it will be necessary to give thirty days notice of its cancellation, as suggested by the Chief, Budget and Pinance Branch. As the transfer from the MA to may technically be considered a cancellation of the MA's contract, we fool that the simplest solution is to reexecute an agreement identical to the MA's contract. obtaining the signatures of all three guards and inform the guards that this new contract superseded the appointment of 29 December and world be considered a continuation of their employment under the original terms agreed upon between the Government and the quards as set forth in the HA's contract. As stated by the Chief, Budget and 1A9a Finance, would be paid on a Standard Form 1034. Since there is continuous service involved, we agree with the Chief. Budget and Finance Branch that there would be no payment for leave or indermity to be made at the time of execution of the new agreement.

6. In view of the above, we suggest the following message in place of that proposed by the Chief, Budget and Finance:

25X1A9a "Re 20 July letter on guard contract.

Execute now agreement identical to agreement of 1 July 1946 as superseding the appointment of 29 December 1946. After execution, make payments on 1034. Letter follows."

Proposed Mess Facilities for

I. I have indicated my nonconcurrence to the recommendations of the Chief, Services Branch on the above subject, on page 4 of his memorandum of 30 July 1948. The reasons for this nonconcurrence are set forth below in considerable detail, as apparently there have been misunderstandings and confusion in connection with this problem.

2. We believe that the basic confusion was created by the wording of the Act cited by the Chief, Services as authority for his proposal (5 U.S.C.A. 75a, Section 3 of the Act of 5 Warch 1928, 45 Stat. 193). For clarity, these provisions are set forth in full here again:

independent establishment, where, in his judgment, conditions of employment require it, may continue to furnish civilians employed in the field service with quarters, heat, light, household equipment, subsistence, and laundry service; and appropriations for the fiscal year 1929 and thereafter of the character heretofore used for such purposes are hereby made available therefor: Provided, That the reasonable value of such allowances shall be determined and considered as part of the compensation in fixing the salary rate of such civilians.

this law was enacted do not appear clearly from its text, we have gone into the logislative history. Prior to 1928, many of the departments of the Government were furnishing to certain parts of their field services quarters, subsistence, and other benefits, such as medical attendance and special facilities. These were in effect payments in kind to the field employees. Apparently, Congress felt that this was an unfair differentiation between field and departmental employees, as it conferred an actual material gain to the field employees which could be measured in terms of money. The theory was therefore evolved that the measurable advantage should be considered as part of the salaries of field employees so as to reduce the amount paid in cash. These salaries were, however, established by law and could not be altered by administrative action within the departments. Consequently amual appropriations were made for the several field installations concerned for the payment of salaries and expenses, and these amual appropriations contained specific authority to adjust the salaries involved, kind. By 1928, this had apparently become a routine annual enactment, and it appears that Congress decided to make it permanent legislation.

4. We can only conclude, therefore, that the Act of 5 March 1928 (5 U.S.C.A. 75a) was intended to give field salaries where payments in kind were involved and does not, in itself, authorize expenditures for maintenance of Government quarters, meas services, etc. This conclusion is bolstered by the fact that payments for the facilities or subsistence were made out of by law for that purpose and not under the authority of General (8 C.G. 628 at page 630):

"The pertion of the compensation paid in cash is charged to the salary appropriation, and the determined value of the allowances, including any items of upkeep, maintenance, etc., is chargeable to appropriations expressly provided for that purpose."

Also quoted in that opinion is language from another decision, A-19824 of 15 September 1927:

compensation partly by receiving allowances in kind, only the cash part of the compensation is chargeable to the salary appropriation, the net value of the allowances furnished in kind having already been charged to the proper appropriation available for producing same, in this case Medical and hospital service. This is the correct procedure regardless of whether the appointment or contract of employment does or does not specifically provide that the allowances are to be furnished in kind.

5. We have at no time requested or received any appropriated funds for the purpose of running a mess or paying mess attendants, and 5 U.S.C.A. 75a restricts itself to situations where there are funds appropriated for such specific purposes. Hence, the amount by which an amployee's salary is reduced is an incidental issue which will arise only if we are concerned in the future with the operation of quarters or subsistence from funds given us for that purpose. In our opinion, therefore, there is at present no authority for CIA to make expenditures for the type of activity proposed for the

The driver stated in an interrogatory that he was carrying cortain United States records in his vohicle when a horse-drawn cart caused him to swerve into the building. The police apparently considered him negli-gent, however, and charged him with reckless driving. The final police action is not indicated,

5. Heither the driver nor our clerk in charge of transportation reported the accident, and on at least one occasion, the clork diverted an attempt by the building owner to submit his claim. When the accident was finally brought to our attention in February, 1948, both the driver and the clork were suspended and later discharged. In the mountime, the driver had been attempting to settle the damages directly with the building owner in order to preserve his employment with our stationsX1A7b

The Chief of the mended that the claim be approved for settlement in the maximum amount of subject to negotiation and a has rocom-25X1A6a possible reduction to LE 20. This recommendation was then forwarded to you by the Chief, Budget and Finance Branch, with the suggestion that the Director's approval be obtained in order to remove any possible doubts of validity.

6. The laws applicable to the settlement of Tort Claims against the Covernment do not cover this situation. The Pederal Tort Claims Act of 1946 is limited to claims arising within the United States and specifically excludes claims arising outside. Congress has jealously guarded the right to pay foreign claims and has granted this power only to certain specified agencies for strictly limited purposes. No such power has been extended to this Agency. We have discussed the matter with logal officers for the Department of State who are experienced in this field, and they concur that the normal procedure where favorable action on such a claim is desired is to forward it to the Goneral Accounting Office, with a recommendation that it be considered a meritorious claim for submission to Congress for special relief. If such notion is desired, we fool our recommendation should be limited to the figure of LE 20, according to the estimate of the Foreign Claims Representative.

7. In view of the above, it is our opinion that there is no authority for the Director to approve payment of this claim unless there are special aspects of a confidential nature or which go to the actual basis of operations. On the record, there do not appear to be such special considerations, as the claim is one which was handled openly with the full knowledge of the police and other officials.

Insurance on Risks to Covernment

 \bigwedge

1. In the absence of specific statutory authority, it is well-established that the Government acts as a self-insurer, and that funds for the support of Government activities are not considered applicable generally for the purchase of insurance to cover loss to the Government. (23 Comp. Gen. 269; id 297 - 4 Comp. Gen. 690, etc.) As the reason for this policy is stated in 19 Comp. Gen. 211, 214 -

The magnitude of its resources obviously makes it more advantageous for the Government to carry its own risks than to shift them to private insurers at rates sufficient to cover all losses, to pay their operating expenses, including agency or brokers' commissions, and to leave such insurers a profit."

The practice of celf-incuring by the Covernment, however, is one of policy and not of positive law, and it is not strictly observed in cases involving property of a Government corporation --- an intervening legal entity (21 Comp. Gen. 928). Nor has it been applied in cases where private property was in the custody of the Government through judicial process, loan, or lease. (8 Comp. Cen. 19; 17 id. 55; D-43932, 9-15-44.) In cases where the application of the policy may be questioned, the doubt can always be resolved if the statutory provision is sufficient to justify the purchase of insurance from a source outside the Government. (3 Comp. Con. 786; 16 1d. 453; 19 id. 211.) It should be noted that the policy relates to the risk and not to the nature of the risk, and that there is no material distinction between assumption of risk of property danage and assumption of risk of tort liability (19 Comp. Ocn. 798). Requirements of necessity or expedience may intervene, of course, and there the application of the fule is obvinted. This would be so where a local statute makes public liability insurance on motor vehicles compulsory.

They requested that all field travel be paid from unroushered famile for reasons of accurity and estimated the amount messently to cover such travel at $50,000 of unroushered famile for the fiscal year 1929, based on an estimate of $50.00 per case. This item of unroushered travel was discussed by the Committee in some detail, and the subject of the extendities to be used may

It is our opinion, therefore, that all such expenditures made heretofore are prescrip chargeable to the allocation of $30,000 of unweachered funds if they are necessary and proper in second and incidental to the travol performed.

In many major cities, the fourest of Federal Supply has contracts for maintenance, remain, and servicing of all federal cars in the erea. Old cars should be taken care of under such contracts and the Bureau reinbursed by us. This would take care of servicing and repairs at most of the headquarters and,

Furthermore, it has been determined that credit darks mould not violate the popurity aspect, and, consequently, all purchases of the and all and almor configurer repairs can be made through credit cards, which will be issued to all drivers. This, again, will be paid on a verthered basis, but it is believed that, purely from a budget point of view, it would be proper to charge these expenses against the $20,000 travel allocation, incomich as the Committee contemplated such expenses in approving that item. Incidentally, it is understood that all care will be registered with Government plates, and there will be an charges for state registration or incurrence.

- producement or emergency repair costs arising in direculatances where for eccurity reasons the Coverment commodition should not be made haven. If it is determined, therefore, that credit cards should make be used, the agent concerned should pay the bill and submit a request for reinforcement out of unvouchound funds on his travel vouchor, with full explanation. It should be made clear, however, to all agents that the burlin of proof will be on them to establish accessity for such essenticy scarures. There such unvouchered expenditures arise, the brighted approval of the PRC expense to be sufficient to possit charging those items to the $90,000 unvoushered travel allocation.
- To In view of the new arrangements for procurement of final and services by Government oredit cards, perhaps consideration about the given to the payment of other travel expenses involved, including per diens from venchored rather than unrenchored funds. This would limit the authorisations for use of unvenchored funds in Administration and Examplement Operating Procedure No. 2 of 1 July to the rare repair and procurement situation involving unusual security expects exclined in paragraph 6 above, commission charges through other than headquarters facilities, and the miscellamous emergency purchases where no Eurosa of Faderal Supply corvice is available.

Office of General Counsel.

Transfer of Property between Government Agencies.

- 1. Your memorandum of 9 September 1948 requests that a decision be rendered as to the authority for the transfer of property from the Federal Communications Commission to the Central Intelligence Agency without an exchange of funds.
- 2. Although the decisions generally referred to by you are concerned more with the transfer of surplus used property from one recognized Government department to another than with property reconciliations resulting from executive and administrative reorganizations, a resume of the decisions may be considered helpful.
- 3. With regard to your specific question, you are advised that there is no legal objection to the mere transfer from one bureau or department of the Government to another department of property no longer required for the purposes for which it was appropriated. Such a transfer is not considered to be a sale and is not open to the objection that public property cannot be disposed of without the authority of Congress. (35 0.A.G. 245). This opinion was confined to a consideration of the authority for transfer and questions of reimbursement between appropriations were not discussed.
- A subsequent decision affords more light on the question of adjustment between appropriations arising from the transfer of supplies or equipment no longer needed by the transferor department. That such a transaction is not a sale was recognized, conversely, by the Comptroller of the Treasury, (25 Comp. Dec. 961), when he held that where equipment is transferred from one Government department to another, payment to the transferor department is not authorized since the transaction is not Continuing, the Comptroller added that no adjustment of appropriations is required where the expenditures, from the appropriations which have the original expense, have accomplished the purposes for which it was made. mere transfer without additional expense involves a mere question of accountability and not an adjustment of appropriations, e.g., the transfer of a revenue cutter, no longer suitable as such, to another department for use as a supply vessel in the servicing of coastal lighthouses and lightships.

- 5. However, in 17 O.A.G. 480, the Attorney General pointed out that a transfer of property for administrative expediency, although not a sale, may involve not only a transfer of property, custody and accountability, but a transfer of cost from one appropriation to another.
- 6. With respect to property transfers involving reimbursement, it can be stated that the transfer of public property from one bureau or department to another, and the reimbursement of the appropriation from which originally purchased by a transfer of moneys from the appropriation for the object for which the property is to be used, has been recognized by long practice and is often economical and advantageous. Such a transfer is not a sale within the meaning of Section 3618 of the Revised Statutes, and it is not required that the moneys received therefor shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. But reimbursement is made, and the moneys so received are repaid to the appropriations from which. the property was originally purchased, in order that such transfers may not be in contravention of Section 3678 of the Revised Statutes, which provides that all funds appropriated for the various branches of the public service shall be applied solely to the objects for which they were respectively made. (12 Comp. Dec. 668; 14 Comp. Dec. 641; and 21 Comp. Dec. 819 support the foregoing.)
- 7. The firmness of the above principles is demonstrated by an interpretation of the Act of July 11, 1915, 41 Stat. 132, by the Comptroller of the Treasury. The Act provides:

"The interchange without compensation therefor, of military stores, supplies, and equipment of every character, including real estate owned by the Government, is hereby authorized between the Army and the Navy upon the request of the head of one service and with the approval of the head of the other service."

The Comptroller held that the Act did not contemplate a department transferring its property to another department where that action would put the transferor department to the expense of procuring other property to replace that transferred.

8. As previously stated, the reasoning of the Attorney General and other authorities has been based on voluntary transfers of property between Government departments and not on transfers of property accompanied by a transfer of functions, personnel, records, etc., caused by executive or administrative reorganizations, consolidations, or eliminations.

- 9. You will recall that Executive Order 9621, dated 20 September 1945, terminated the Office of Strategic Services and certain of the functions, personnel, records, etc., were transferred to the Secretary of War, where a Strategic Services Unit was created. By Presidential Directive, dated 22 January 1946, the President directed the respective heads of State, War and Navy to assist in the establishment of a Central Intelligence Group under a Director of Central Intelligence, responsible to the National Intelligence Authority. Pursuant thereto, the Acting Secretary of War, by memorandum dated 3 April 1946, directed the Director of the Strategic Services Unit to make available any facilities and services of the Strategic Services Unit which might be useful in the performance of an authorized function of the Central Intelligence Group. Thereafter, and in accordance with Paragraph 5 of N.I.A. Directive No. 5, dated 8 July 1946, property, supplies, and equipment were transferred by the Strategic Services Unit, War Department, to the Central Intelligence Group. The nature of the consolidations, under the circumstances then existing, compels a conclusion that all transfers were intended to be accomplished without reimbursement or adjustments between appropriations.
- 10. This Office does not consider that the acquisition of property from OSS to SSU to CIA involve an application of the ordinary rules covering the transfer of property between Government departments.
- II. It is the understanding of this Office that a reconciliation of the FCC inventory and CIA inventory has not been achieved due to variances in nomenclature, quantities, and the absence of satisfactory records from CIA predecessors. Although it is not clear how an inventory taken by CIG on or about 1 November 1946 will reflect the FCC inventory as of the time of transfer to G-2 of the War Department, due to intervening withdrawals and replensishment of stocks by this Office perceives no legal objection to the proposed arrangement on the assumption 25X1A7b that a satisfactory reconciliation, or other appropriate administrative measures, can be effected on a basis consistent with the expressions contained herein.

1. This will acknowledge your memorandum dated 23 September 1948 in regard to renting parking space in lateral for the Contact Branch of C.I.A. P.B.A.
Enclosure 65969 forwarded by your memorandum quoted pertinent provisions of the Rules and Regulations governing leases in the space is desired. The sections singled out for particular comment provide that:

"2. The management will endeavor to protect the property of patrons, but will not be responsible for loss or damage to cars or their contents from any cause whatsoever. A check room is provided without charge. Lessee's cars are not covered by our insurance.

"4. All cars driven, called for, or delivered at the owner's request are handled at owner's risk, and any person so driving shall be the exclusive servant of the owner and it is understood that for insurance protection they must be covered by owner's insurance policies and cars are operated under owner's responsibility and at owner's own risk.

- "5. The owner hereby agrees to indemnify and save the management harmless from any and all liability for injury or death of persons and damage to property arising by the operation of the car within the confines of the garage by the owner of such car or his agent."
- 2. These sections have been carefully reviewed by this Office, and it is our opinion that they are illegal and void as against the Government. In a similar situation in which the Government agreed to indemnify the Southern Pacific Company in an equally broad and indefinite scope, the Comptroller General (16 C.G. 803) stated that such an agreement came within the prohibition of 8. 3732, Revised Statutes, which provides:

"No contract or purchase on behalf of the United States chall be made, unless the same is authorized by law or is under an appropriation adequate to its fulfillment, except in the War and Navy Departments, for clothing, subsistence, forage, fuel, quarters, transportation, or medical and hospital supplies, which, however, shall not exceed the necessities of the current year. R.S. § 3732; June 12, 1906, c. 3078, 34 Stat. 255.

The Comptroller General goes on to say that the Government cannot contractually assume a liability for the negligence of its own officers, employees, or agents. In another case in which the Government agreed to sweeping indemnities to the contractor, the Comptroller indicated that the portion regarding such indemnity was null and void and that the contracting officer had exceeded his authority in entering into such an agreement, (7 Comp. Gen. 507).—Continues

- 3. It therefore appears that sections 2, 4, and 5 of the garage's lease regulations are inapplicable to the Government. Any torts of Governmental employees can, of course, be settled as appropriate by the head of the Agency under the authority and within the limits of the Federal Tort Claims Act.
- 4. We were also asked to give an opinion on the propriety of insuring the invitees and their property. For the purposes of liability insurance, an insurable interest would depend on the potentiality of a claim for damages. Since there is no actual agency relationship between the garage and the Government, and the Government cannot be bound by any indemnification provisions of a contract, a potential liability for the negligence of garage employees does not appear to exist. Unless the invitee enters into a personal agreement with the garage, there is no assumption of liability on his part, and he can take legal action against the garage for any injury suffered through the negligence of the garage's employees. An invitee would, of course, be personally liable for his own torts.

Limitation of Damages XG-129,

25X1A5a1

Barrens.

- 1. This contract provides for the installation, and maintenance and operation of a burglar-alarm system. These contract contains a clause limiting the liability of the contractor to the Government for each breach. The liquidated damages are nominal ($50.00) and are proposed on the basis that it would be "impractical and extremely difficult to fix the actual damages". In this regard, it is assumed that the contents of the vault protected will consist of almost, if not, entirely classified papers which are not readily susceptible to monetary valuation.
- 2. The law appears to be well settled that the parties to a contract may agree on liquidated damages for any breach of the contract when the material or services to be provided under the contract cannot be readily obtained on the open market, and damages would be difficult to determine. The Supreme Court has stated (Sun Printing and Publishing Association v. Moore, 183 U.S. 642) that:

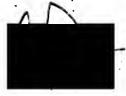

damages and penalty lend no support to the contention that parties may not bona fide, in a case where the damages are of an uncertain nature, estimate and agree upon the measure of damages which may be sustained from the breach of an agreement. On the contrary, this court has consistently maintained the principle that the intention of the parties is to be arrived at by the proper construction of the agreement made between them, and that whether a particular stipulation to pay a sum of money is to be treated as a penalty, or as an agreed ascertainment of damages; is to be determined by the contract, fairly construed, it being the duty of the court always, where the damages are uncertain and have been liquidated by an agreement, to enforce the contract.

3. On the other hand, if the stipulation for liquidated damage is, on the face of the contract, disproportionate to possible actual damages, then the sum will most probably be construed as a penalty and enforced only to the extent of actual damages sustained. In passing, it is noted that proper liquidated damages do not have to be proven; it is sufficient to plead the breach of contract.

- In reviewing the statutes and opinions, there does not appear to be any restriction of the Government's right to agree to liquidate damages. When 'Time of Delivery' is of the essence or services or material cannot be readily obtained in the open market, an appropriate liquidated damages clause can be properly included in the contract. Generally, liquidated damages should not be permitted to exceed the contract price, although this usually applies to situations where supplies or commodities can be readily obtained, and, in which liquidated damages should not have been stipulated at all. The converse is illustrated in the situation on which the Comptroller commented in 16 Comp. Gen. 344. In that case, damages were stipulated for delays in delivery of two items of material not readily obtainable in the open market. Damages amounted to $800.00 for $105.00 worth of supplies, and the Comptroller stated that although the clause was appropriate, there was no apparent relationship between the agreed sum and the potential injury. In For the absence of a showing of actual damage resulting from the delay in delivery, the provision was treated in the nature of a penalty and not recognized. It should be noted that a contributing factor to this conclusion was the fact that the stipulated damages applied equally to two items and failed to distinguish a suitable measure of damages. profortionate to the injury.
 - The opinions of the Comptroller have been directed at contracts in which payment of stipulated damages have worked a hardship on the Contractor rather than the Government. The clause in the contract under consideration is governed by the general rules outlined above, but it also raises the question of whether there is any limitation on the contracting officer's authority to limit the Government's potential right to claim damages. Since the services to be provided cannot be readily (indeed, cannot be satisfactorily) obtained from any other contractor, a liquidated damages clause is appropriate. Since it is assumed that the contents of the protected vault do not have an intrinsic value in money, the amount indicated in the clause may be accepted as appropriate. If at any time there is a loss of property which is susceptible to accurate evaluation, then the stipulated amount might be considered so disproportionate as to permit an assessment of actual damage.

In view of the above, this office, in advising on the propriety of proposed payments or pact payments, has looked to the Comptroller G-neral's Accisions for guidance in forming its opinions.

In this case, the mounts in question involve $602.50 per dien during her training period in Kushington, N.C., and 170.17 for truvel expenses from Barth Dakota to Washington. vas vortiles in Veshington, D.C., with the Her Assats Adalatetration from 30 September 1946 until 4 April 1947. Appearantly, she had make application for explorment with CIA prior to 4 April 1947. This is evidenced by her letter, dated 26 North 1947, in which the trota to CIA that the was leaving on vacation for approximately two meaths. the furnished an address in North lakate at Which she could do reached in the ereat further information was desired in connection with her application. In September 1945, she was employed by a private law firm in Machington, D.C. The available records establish that she was still employed with this law firm on 8 May 1947.

5. The auditors have stated that it appears the actual residence of the four individuals at the time of appointment was vashington, D.C. If the actual residence were not in Vashington, D.C., the questioned items sould expect to be legal and proper payments. It would expect, therefore, that there are two basic questions to be answered.

so that was the setual residence, at the time of appointment, of each of the fear individuals?

b. If it is determined that the actual residence at the time of appointment was Vashington, D.C., is the payment of pardies under such circumstances authorized?

6. In 26 Comp. Cen. 483, 15 James 7 47, the question was ruled as to whether the term "pottal residence", as used in Section ? of

- 3 - 114

OF OFFI

Public Law 600, includes the "legal residence" or "demicile" of an employee who is appointed under the electronistences cuttined in that specific case. The electrones involved in that case concarned employees in the hand can there are children 25X1A6a and could not be said to have had any actual residence in the United States at the time of their appointment. It was stated that the term "actual residence" generally would be understood to seem the place at which the appointes physically resided at the time of his appointment. It was then held that the term need not be so restricted under all circumstances, and that in a case of this type the term "actual residence" may be held to include the legal residence or demicile of such an employee. This principle, in so far an employees of the Fanama Consi fone were concerned, was reaffirmed in 27 Comp. Gen. 507, I April 1983.

D.C., at the time she was requested to report for duty, which of whomid be reported as the time of her appointment. Although her letter to this Agency stated she was going to North Points for a vacation, she had given up her residence in Vacahington, D.C., consequently, it is our opinion that Vacahington, D.C., was not her actual residence at the time of her appointment with CIA.

25X1A9a :

- b. Earch on the facts presented, it appears that 25X1A9a mas physically residing or maintaining her place of Missing in Triington, D.C., at the time of her appointment with CIA. Consequently, her actual residence at the time of appointment must be recorded as acchington, b.C.
- In tha ento, the facto indicate that, for the convenience of the Covernment, he was returned to Vashington, D.C., for discharge rather than to the point of induction. The more fact that he was returned to Machington. D.C., on a permanent change of daily arear doss not nacessarily constitute Varhington. D.C., as his actual residence. The FCD orders wore required for covaration purposes by the Kar Department, but eliminating the technical acts of the various agencies concerned. the facts electly indicated that, as between the J. K. Government and the individual, a bona fids travel whotes was established. In amplying the above-cited Comptroller General's decisions to the facts presented in this case, we do not feel that the term "potted residenced need be restricted to his physical presence at the time of the cinterent. In this case, it is our epinion that his legal residence in Rasali may be considered his actual recidence for the surposes of Ecclien 7 of Jubile Law 600 in Vachington, D.C. Therefore, it was be concluded that har actual residence at the time of oppointment with CIA was Vachalazion, D.C.

- 7. In considering the energy to the question precented in 5 (b) above, we must determine when par diem is payable. For diem in lieu of subsidence may be paid, if enthorized, where an employee is traveling on official business and many from his designated post of duty. Although per diem may be authorized, payrant thereof may be made only if the enthorization is consistence with applicable laws and regulations. As indicated above, the Comptroller Central has issued many decisions interpreting such laws and regulations.
 - transferred from one post in the forerment to another. Her official station at the first agency was Vachington, h.C., and, upon transfer, she was directed by the new agency to remain in Vachington, V.C., temperatly before reporting to her new official station. It was stated that no per dies was payable during much period of temperary duty in vachington, R.C., since the employee was not traveling on official business and apparently lived just as she had been living up to the time of her transfer. Consequently, the transfer did not operate to place her in a travel status so as to entitle her to subsistence or per diem in lieu thereof.
 - b. The basic facts in 11 Comp. Gen. 132, 13 October 31. Consisted of the appointment of an employee who was required to perform temperary duty at his place of residence before reporting to his first poet of duty. It was held that the temperary duty was performed at the place of residence of the employee at the time of his ampointment, and he was not put to any additional expense by reason of such temperary duty. Accordingly, per dies for each period was disallowed.
 - c. The facts in 15 Comp. Gen. 62%, 17 January 1936, are very similar to those in 11 Comp Gen. 132, mited above. It was stated that where the employee enters upon duty at the place of appointment, a travel status entitling him to per siem in lique of subsistence does not begin until he actually begins travel from that point.
 - d. The holding set forth in 9 Comp. Com. 233 was reaffirmed in 20 Comp. Gen. 820, 27 May 1981. The facts in the two cause are substantially similar. It was held that there was no subbarity under which the amployee could be paid per dien at his place of residence before entering upon a travel status.
 - e. The holdings of the Compteller General's decisions edied above were again confirmed in 22 Comp. Gen. 869. 6 North 43. In this case, no transfer from one Edvernment agency to another was involved. It was held that substatence can not be paid if the temporary enty required of the new employee is in the city of his residence, and therefore entails no extra expenses to be relatureed. The previous cases were cited, and no apparent distinction was made between the cases where the exployee is a new appointed to deverment envice, and those where he is transferred from one Covernment agency to another.

- 6. The never which from Special Punks, dated 13 Kentenber 1955. after a number of Comptreller General's decidens which it advances as supporting the propriety of the payments involved.
 - noted that the Comptolic General held that payment of per dien to an employee in authorized travel status and otherwise entitled thereto was not precluded solely because the employee was estimated to temperary duty at a place which happened to be his home. The facto in this case are that the employee was directed to proceed from his official station in Chicago to Mithian City, Indiana, for temperary duty. The distance involved was approximately 58 alies, and it so deposed that the employee maintained his residence in Michigan City and consisted daily to his efficial station. It was also stated in that decision that evidence of actual expenditures is not a condition precedent to the payment of per dies in lies of subsistance to an employee shown to be in a bone file travel status.
 - 10 Comp. Com. 222, 15 Hovember 30, is cited. This epinion is, in effect, a review of the opinion rendered in 10 Comp. Com. 16%, 24 October 30. Under which einemataneous, where employees were directed to report to Weshington for a temporary duty prior to scalgament to their duty stations, the Committeeller Constal held that, whose the employee is required to perform terperary duty on rente to his official duty station. he may be retelered for the additional substatement and transportables emposed imposed on his by being required to proceed to some point other than his first official duty station. The employee was requested to report to Vachington, D.C., and it done not opper that Vachington was his residence. Didaequent to temperary duty in suchington, D.O., the exployee was required. to proceed to his first efficied duty station. 10 Comp. Gen. 104 and 225 were alted in support of the principles set forth in 22 temp. Sen. Lift. cited above.
 - Travel status are from that the terms "temperary duty" and "travel status are from the past of promounts. 21 form. Gen.
 591. 22 Newscher bl. contains such a statement. The question to be determined in that care was whether or not the travel pries which described the daty as "temperary" would be conflictent to emake payment of temperartation expendes of the results of the employed to be note where the regulations provide for such payment "while temperarily absent from duty dering a period of travel as official business."

9. A careful review of the cited Comptroller General's decisions has been made. The assistance of the Migost Section of the General Accounting Office was requested, and no other epinions word offered by them. In considering all of the pertinent decisions, it ergents clear to this office that, where an explored is appointed. at the place of his residence, whether that place be designated his official duty station or a tomorrary duty station, he would not be authorized to receive per dien in lies of subsistence until he estimily began travel from the place of appointment. The Comptroller General has held, in such circumstances, that traval could not begin until actual travel from that point was become Consequently, he is not in a bone file treval etatus at the place of appointment. The statement that payment of per dien is not procluded solely because the tourcrary daily is at the place of residence of the employee in not sufficient to permit payment of per sion where the employee's residence is the place of appointment. The fact that the employee in required to remain temperarily at his place of appointment which is his residence prior to irred to his designated first post of cuty coes not place his in a travel status so as to entitle him to per dien at the place of appointments.

10. For the information and guidance of all concorned, we should like to make additional concorned concorning these cause. In englishing the records partialize to the four cases, cortain irregularities were noticed in the records.

a. It appears thut, in at least one case, the employee one not furnished calary from the date travel began at the place of actual residence, but began approximately two days after her arrival in Machington, D.C. In 24 Comp. Sen. 371.

18 Nevember 1976, it was stated that, in the absence of a specific statistory prevision to the contrary, a travel status usually someone a duty status to which compensation attaches. This ruling was made in connection with a case where the Agency involved had anthorisation to pay expenses of the employes to the first post of duty absoud. The provisions were substantially similar to Section 7 of Public Law 600. Therefore, there should be considered appropriate procedures to ensure malary payments to employees is such circumstances from the leginning of their travel.

b. In all cases, transfer letters were issued indicating a transfer of efficial station from Washington, D.C., to the respective excreens stations. Such preciders is obviously incorrect. Americal B.O. orders prescribe appropriate procedures in such cases.

No legal objection has been taken to the payments on the basis of the irregularities mentioned above or other technical deficiencies. Note ever, the records should reflect the correct status of each employed at all times.

"De facto" Employment of Attendant.

25X1A6a

- 1. In accordance with your verbal request, I have examined the possibility of treating the mess attendant at as a de facto employee for the period he was carried on the Agency's payroll.
- 2. The Comptroller (3 Comp. Gen. 10 12) has stated the general rule that:

"Service rendered as a de facto officer can not form the basis of any legal claim against the Government for compensation, therefore, but compensation already paid for services rendered as a de facto officer may be retained if not in excess of the reasonable value thereof."

In the situation presented a person holding a position as register and receiver of a U. S. land office was considered ineligible to also hold the office of commissioner. This prohibition resulted from the specific statutory provision ("dual componsation" not applicable), but the employee was hold a de facto officer for the period actually employed in the latter job. In opinion B-42222, dated June 9/44, a statutory prohibition of the employment of alions not only prevented the payment of salary but also the retention of any portion improperly paid--regardless of whether the officer was de facto or de jure. And, in 15 Comp. Gen. 587, the Comptroller stated that a person fraudulently obtaining employment could at most be regarded only as a do facto employee, although the question of refunding salary payments was not raised. There are also numerous opinions involving retention boyond retirement age, appointment after retirement, and holdover boyond expiration of appointment period, in which the general rule was restated. (See 3 Comp. Gon. 823; 8 id. 73; 10 id. 554; 12 id. 754; and 22 id. 300.) Work prior to acceptance of appointment or reporting for duty has on two occasions classified the employee as either de facto or volunteer (8 Comp. Gen. 369; 18 id. 81). In all of the situations reviewed above, however, the objectionable defect has lain in the individual's personal eligibility for the office.

He has failed to qualify as a de jure officer because he was prohibited by either a statutory provision or a rule of policy. But, in each case, a de jure office existed. Where such a de jure office does not exist, then there can be neither a de jure nor de facto officer. This was clearly presented by the Comptroller in 3 Comp. Gen. 647. In that case, a member of the Marine Corps was denied the right to compensation for mail clerk in an American legation in China when the office had not been established in accordance with law.

3. In the instant case, the mess was established for the convenience of a minority group of individuals. If a Government mess was not authorized, then the inclusion of a messman in the T.O. appears to be illegal per se and the office did not exist de jure. Therefore, the Government's claim against the recipient for refund of the amount of pay already received appears to be proper.

Claim against Railway Express Agency

- 1. Your memorandum of 4 November 1948 forwarded the file on Government Bill of Lading No. XG-627 and requested advice on the appropriate action to be taken. There is no need to repeat the facts which are clearly presented in your memorandum.
- The Railway Express Agency is apparently . unaware that a Government Bill of Lading - rather than their regular commercial shipping receipt - was used. Hence they have attempted to apply their Standard Limitation of Liability. Reserving the question of whether such a limitation could be applicable to the Government even if accepted, the carrier here has no recourse to a provision not contained within the boundaries of the agreement. To forestall a possible argument that condition No. 2 of the Government Bill of Lading would incorporate the terms of the carrier's standard commercial form unless specifically excepted (as in Condition No. 7), attention is directed to the decision of the Comptroller General in 19 Comp. Gen. 537. He cited the judicial conflict that existed in regard to the sovereign authority of the Government and the power of its agents to restrict or bargain away certain advantages demanded by public policy. Among these advantages was the froodom of the Government from the usual time limitations for filing claims. The Standard Government Bill of Lading now contains a provision (Condition No. 7) that in case of loss, damage, or shrinkage in transit, the rules and conditions governing commorcial shipment shall not apply as to the period within which notice shall be given, claim made, or suit instituted. Even in the absence of this provision, however, the Comptroller felt that the Government was not subject to the usual commercial limitations, and the deletion of the condition could not being the limitations into operation. In the present situation, the reason is even more compelling for preserving the Government's freedom from a commercial restriction which would limit the liability of the carrier without regard to liquidated damages. The contracting officer has not agreed to such limitation by using the commercial form and it is not felt that the Government is subjected to the restriction by implication.

3. The above opinion is provided primarily for your reference in event the carrier raises the argument suggested. Since he is apparently under the impression that the usual commorcial express receipt was used, it is suggested that you call his attention to the fact that a Government Bill of Lading was employed, and that it contained no limitation of damages. In the meantime, it appears proper to continue to withhold from current unpaid carrier bills an amount sufficient to cover the damage, - or, of course, accept a payment in the amount of the total damages.

Weight Allowances under Foreign Service Travel Regulations

25X1A6a

- l. Reference is made to proposed official dispatch dated 25 October 1948 from the Chief, FBZ to the Chief of Station, concerning the application of weight allowances to employees with designations. The application of weight allowances arises from Agency adoption of Foreign Service Travel Regulations for employees in such catagory. You have referred this dispatch to this office for coordination.
- 2. This office is coordination this matter by memorandum in place of signature or initial coordination due to the interpretative character of the proposed communication.
- 3. It is apparent that the Foreign Service Travel Regulations were adopted to achieve a equalization of benefits between CIA employees having a designation status and State employees having actual Foreign Service status. Faragraph 3 of referenced memorandum accomplishes this objective with respect to weight allowances.
- 4. To deny an additional 7,750 pounds to those employees who arrived at their overseas station prior to 1 January 1948 would be to further the difficulties of equalization which have affected CIA designees in the past.
- 5. The cut-off date of 1 January 1948 determines the date of adoption of Foreign Service Travel Regulations and the date on which additional weight allowances become available to eligible employees. Any retroactive grants prior to 1 January 1948 would be opposed to Agency intent and would foster a condition of unsettlement in administrative accounts.

6. On the basis of the foregoing and the memorandum heretofore referred to, this office concurs with the interpretations concerning additional weight allowances.

Executive Order 9805

- l. The problem presented in your memo of 28 October has been considered and the appropriate authorities reviewed. The writer has also discussed the Order with its author and members of the Bureau of Federal Supply and the G.A.O.
- 2. Executive Order 9805 (as amended by Executive Order 9933) was issued under the authority of P.L. 600, 79th Congress. The amendment, however, is not pertinent to the problem presented in your case.
- There are some patent inconsistencies on the face of the Order itself and more than a normal confusion has been encountered in its application. The basic limitations of Government liability, however, are simply seven thousand (7000) pounds for uncrated goods and an additional allowance of twenty-five per cent or a total limit of eight thousand seven hundred fifty (8750) pounds for crated. This applies to all goods regardless of the mode of transportation. The Order carries a further limitation of an arbitrary evaluation of gross weight at eighty per cont of the combined weight of goods and crating in certain cases. G.A.O. has informed me that this is used only in shipments by van where the reduction is made because of the shipper's normal practice of crating. only part of the goods. The limitation is ignored in shipments by truck, rail, or vessel where such partial packing is not employed. Thus, in answer to your specific question regarding a shipment of five thousand nine hundred eighty (5980) pounds of goods in a lift van of three thousand seven hundred twenty (3720) pounds involving transportation all or partly by vessel (apparently by an employee having an immediate family), a maximum limit of eight thousand seven hundred fifty (8750) pounds is applicable and any amount in excess of that figure cannot be accepted as a proper charge against the Government.

4. At least in the Bureau of Federal Supply, the twentyfive per cent differential for packing is considered inadequate.

If application of the Order results in an almost standard hardship to our employees, then you may wish to discuss internally a possible change through concerted action by various agencies.
For this purpose, Mr. Newenhaum, X-371, in the Bureau of Federal Supply would probably be willing to coordinate the effort. Upon request this office will be pleased to assist further in this matter.

It is interesting to note that the chandards of the Claims Board require, prior to its favorable action thereon, that the claims have exhausted his legal resides against the common carrier. The Claims Board is also required to take into consideration whether the failure of the claiment to carry insurance on his property is indicative of negligence.

- 5. Recognition of these matters automatically, and without a record including the basic facts and findings of the interested activity, would place the Severagent in a position of incurer, which is patently expected to traditional government policy.

It is recognized that the effects are handled many times and by various classes of people during the course of a journey, and it is apparent that the greatest protection to the employee lies in adsumate insurance coverage and not in the pursuit of difficult legal remains after sustaining damage.
- 8. On the basis of the record presented, the only conceivable avenue of relief night to available in the hardship provisions of special Funds Regulations, 10.4; an essential condition to the exercise of that relief power, however, being the existence of an energency. Satject case is eitent in this regard. If other reacties, bayond the scope or coverage of the written regulations, are contemplated it becames a ratter for administrative cognisance and due presentation of the facts, findings, and recommendations thereon.
- Thus, it would appear that there are no facts of record which distinguish this case from others which have come to the attention of the administrative activities handling these matters; that the position in which the amployes finds himself is not traccable to any disrepresentation, lack of judgment or breach of duty on the fact of newbors of this organization, that the Government has not intervened to preclude the employee from purening his legal roundless against the process of the basis of pertingut unforted facts; that the employee has not completely exhausted his remailes against the carrier or packer of the goods and boundeded effects.

Auto Repair Contract - Additional Work

16 November 1948

Contracto (Astitional Horker

- 1. The contracting Section has requested our opinion regarding the legal propriety of including one additional car under an existing contract for repairs and services to certain Agency vohicles. The vehicles are listed in a referenced list attached to the contract and total about thirty-four (34) cars, all but three of which are Fords. The remaining are Mercurys. A new car has now been acquired, and the Contracting Officer wishes to add it to this list.
- 2. Primarily, the question for consideration here is the possible violation of the requirements of Section 3709, Revised Statutes, which provides:

"All purchases and contracts for supplies or services, in any of the departments of the Government, except for personal services, shall be made by advertising a sufficient time previously for proposals respecting the same, when the public exigencies do not require the immediate delivery of the articles, or performance of the service. When immediate delivery or performance is required by the public exigency, the articles or service required may be procured by open purchase or contract, at the places and in the manner in which such articles are usually bought and sold, or such services engaged, between individuals. R.S. Section 3709."

3. In addition to the exceptions indicated in the Statute itself (i.e., personal services and emergencies), advertising has not been considered necessary where a specific statutory exemption exists of where it would serve no useful purpose. The Comptroller has also read into the Statute the additional qualification of reasonableness or magnitude of the change in the contract. Thus, in 5 Comp. Gen. 508, (512), he states:

"In general, an existing contract may not be expanded so as to include additional work of any considerable magnitude, without compliance with Section 3709, Revised Statutes, unless it clearly appears that the additional work was not in contemplation at the time of the original contracting and is such an unseparable part of the work originally contracted for as to render it reasonably impossible of performance by other than the original contractor."

and, referring to this same opinion, he says in 5 Comp. Gen. 642, (644-5):

"There may be instances after a contract has been duly and lawfully entered into on behalf of the United States for the doing or acquiring of things authorized by law to be done or acquired, where a change or modification in the contract specifications is essential and in the interest of the United States. In such instances, if the changes materially alter the character or scope of the requirements under the original contract, said contract should be terminated in the interest of the Government and bids should be solicited on the work as changed. If the changes do not materially affect the requirements under the original contract but involve rather an addition thereto, the rule with reference to the procedure to be followed is as stated in decision of January 21, 1926, 5 Comp. Gen. 508."

The basic legislative intent behind Section 3709 is well explained in 18 Comp. Gen. (643):

"It has been frequently held by the courts and by the accounting officers of the United States that the provisions of the statute are designed to give all persons equal right to compete for Government business; to secure to the Government the benefits which flow from competition; to prevent unjust favoritism by representatives of the Government in making purchases on public account; and to prevent collusion and fraud in procuring supplies or letting contracts."

Considering the purpose behind the provision and accepting the lead of "materiality of the change" indicated by the Comptroller, it is not believed that any exception would be taken by the General Accounting Office if the additional car were added to the list of the original contract provided the car is the same manufacturing make as those included under the original contract, and the inclusion is acceptable to the contractor.

4. The Contracting Officer is being advised accordingly.

Subsistence ()

Per Diem Restrictions in Administrative Instruction 30-3

I. The Chief, Budget and Finance Branch, has recommended that there be an agency-wide policy on limitation of time for which per diem may be granted. The Deputy Chief, Management Branch, has recommended that there be no limitation, as employees traveling today lose money on a CS.00 per diem.

- It is clearly established that under the provisions of the Subsistance Expense Act of 1926, as amended, (5 U.S.C.A. 823), the heads of the departments and establishments have final authority to prescribe the circumstances under which per diens may be granted. The Attorney General's ruling on this situation is of interest. In ... Volume 57 of the Opinions of the Attorney General beginning at page 219, he considered the question raised by the Secretary of War whether the Comptroller General might. fix a limit of 30 days as a maximum period in which an officer night be allowed per dien; while on temperary duty at one place. It appears that the Comptroller General had written to the Secretary of the Mavy suggesting that the Mavy travel instructions be amonded to limit per diem to such a 30 day period, and as a result, this amondment was issued by the Secretary of the Navy. The Secretary of War decided not to issue the regulation and asked the Attorney General if the Comptroller General's suggestions would be controlling. The Attorney General answered that in the law Congress has not declared the intention to limit the period for per diem and that therefore the matter of making regulations governing performance of temporary duty at one place is exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Secretary of War and the President and that the Comptroller General may not go behind the Secretary's decision and must be guided by it.
- authority to limit or to remove limitations on the payof the Comptroller General, as expressed in the letter given consideration.

Le China a da de

Deputy Chief, Hanagement Branch, appear to be based on the fact that people actually traveling lose money at $6.00 per dien. The limitation, however, is only to temporary duty performed at one place. Per diem is an allowance to make up for extra costs incurred while traveling away from home. Limitations of time have been imposed by various departments on the theory that when an employee stays in one place for an extended period of time, he can make arrangements which lessen or eliminate the extra expense. There are procedents for such limitations in various agencies such as Mavy, Army (despite the attitude displayed above), and Interior. Others probably could be found.

In the case of the Interior Department, an opinion of the Comptroller General is of Interest. The Assistant. Secretary of Interior approved a regulation stating that when an official remained at a temporary duty station in excess of 60 days, that place became ipso facto his headquarters, and por dien would necessarily coase. The Secretary of Interior attempted to make an exception to the Department's regulation in a particular instance. The quorsion was put before the Comptroller General as to whother the payment already made could thus be allowed. His ruling in 10 Comp. Gen. 242 stated that inasmuch as the Department's regulation was made under the authority of the Subsistence Expense Act of 1926, it had the force and effect of law, and payments contrary thereto by the distairsing agent were as invalid and unauthorized as though they had been expressly prohibited by statute, and therefore allowance could not be raide in this instance although the regulation had subsequently been reseinded.

in ruking the administrative determination but in no sense impair the Director's authority to control allow-ence of per diems up to the legal limit, subject to the over-all regulations approved by the Prosident. Since per diems may be administratively reduced or eliminated at any time, it might be sufficient as an over-all agency policy for the Director to require appropriate officials to review all cases where per diem is paid to an individual on temporary duty at one place for a period of more than 50 or 60 days, with a view to reducing or eliminating per diem at that time if the circumstances warranted such action-

Release

- 1. Subject release forwarded for comment by your memorandum of 8 November is returned herewith.
- A Federal employee has recourse to two paths of action in the event he is injured in the course of his omployment. (It is assumed here that the employee is required to accept the injections as a condition of his caployment and hence the inoculation is given in the course of that employment.) He may accept the benefits provided under the Employees' Componsation Act, or he may suo under the Federal Tort Claims Act. At the present time, his remedies are considered to be elective and he is not entitled to the benefits of both. If he chooses the Compensation Act as the vehicle to recovery, the release would be ineffectual in barring recovery. As a matter of policy - although the statute itself is silent - the Bureau of Employees' Compensation Commission does not recognize the waiver. If he elects the Tort Claims Act, a waiver would be void for want of consideration - which would also be true under the Compensation. Act. Although the inoculation may be considered a condition of employment which the employee must presumably accopt in order to continue his work, he cannot be required to waive his legal rights to seek compensation for any injury resulting from a negligent injection.
 - 3. For the reasons given above, it is not believed that the enclosed release serves any sound purpose. Although there does not appear to be any strict legal prohibition against requiring an employee to execute the release, it is suggested that the practice be discontinued in view of its futility.

- 2. It appears that such arrangements were specifically contemplated in the Health Services Act of 1946 (5 U.S.C.A. 189), which authorized the health nervice departments and appeared to establish health nervice programs by contemple or otherwise. The intent of this province is clarified by a legislative note in the 1929 U.S. Code Congressional Service, page 1423, which states that under cortain situations there will not be justification for catabilishing health units in the agency, and in such cases necessary services can be produced by contract with nedical organizations, private physicians, or industrial health units. The law restricts the furnishing of such health services to energency treatment and preventive health programs.
- 3. The attached proposal appears to be within those limitations, but it should be made quite clear that the services of the Contract Physician are not engaged for private treatment for the personal benefit of employees. Such treatment must be paid for by the employees, and if the injury or illness is insurred in line of duty, claim may be made under the Employees Compensation Act.
- requires consultation with the Public Health Service and consideration of its recommunications. The law also requires that the program be within the limits of appropriations made available thousand Discussions with the Chief, Budget and Finance Example indicate that appropriated funds are evaluable to support this program.

To have made what we boliove to be an exhaustive review of the laws, regulations, and decisions concerning the situation cutlined in the accompanying file. As a result, we have reached certain conclusions and are in a position to make certain recommendations.

of unvenchored funds to make any payments in comection with this cases

b. That there is no valid justification for payment by the Government of the entire amount to the mess attendent:

o. On the difference between what the employees are willing to refund and the encunt paid by the Government, there is sufficient doubt as to the necessity for requiring collection from the certifying officer or the employees to justify enguing the point with the auditors or the Comptroller General if it is raised.

Recommendations: a. The amount the employees are willing to retund be immediately collected and forwarded to the Dudget and Finance office in Washington for appropriate disposition:

 with particular reference to what action, if any, the Director is legally authorized to take. In spite of the lengthy memoranda which analyzed the technicalities of these cases, the situation seems simple.
- Per diems were authorized for each employee while in Washington on temporary duty, and vouchers were certified for payment by the certifying efficers. At the time the payments were authorized and made, papers were on file in the effice indicating that their addresses were in Washington. (It is apparently true that in conversations the employees were asked where their homes were and mentioned other than Washington addresses, but the fact remains that Personal History Statements and other documents set forth addresses in Washington.) It is apparent therefore that, although appointed for everseas stations with temperary duty in Washington, neither the converse contend into actual travel status until they left Washington.
- lations, per diem may not be allowed until an employee enters into a bona fide travel status. Your instructions and the Special Funds Regulations in force at the time required compliance with the Standardized Government Travel Regulations. We feel it must be concluded that there was no basis for certification of the per diem vouchers for circumstances existed which would raise an obligation on the part of the Government. This is based on the responsibility placed by law on the certifying officer, as set forth clearly in a recent decision of the Compareller General (28 Comp. Gen. 17, B-74820).
- A. In that case, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue had certified a veucher in which an erroneous computation had been made by subordinates. The exception was not taken by the auditor until two and one-half years later, by which time the statute of limitations prevented any recovery from the taxpayer. The Secretary

- 6. This ruling of the Comptroller General is based on the fact that because of the error in computation there was no obligation on the part of the Government. We believe it is directly applicable to the present situation, for through a misapprehension of the facts, payments were made when, under the existing circumstances, there was actually no obligation on the part of the Government as there was no travel status.
- We have given particular attention to the special authorities vested in you as Director of Contral Intellia. gence over unvouchered funds available to the Agency. There is no question of your power to use these unvouchered funds as you see fit. No one in Government is authorized to go behind your certification. But it is our opinion that inhoront in this grant of public funds to your solo discretion are certain restrictions as to the legal exeroide of this power. Unvouchered funds are granted on the solmouledgramt by Congress and the Comptroller Conoral. that such funds are required for security of operations, support of abnormal operations, to most emergencies, and to take care of extraordinary expenses necessary to the proper exercise of CIA functions. Wherever these elements. or any of them, are present, there will be no question of ... the legality of payments you does necessary, even in cases where ordinarily there would be no obligation on the part of the Government.
- 8. Applied to the two instant cases, we reach the following results. There appears to be no security consideration which would require the payment of per diema in either case. Failure to pay per diema would not hemper or prevent the performance of essential operations. There were no emergency or extraordinary features connected with either case. It is true that there is no law which requires you to follow the Standardized Government Travel Regulations in all cases. However, we find a clear guide to this situation, too, in a Comptroller General's decision set forth in 23 Comp. Gen. 664.
- 9. The Office of Economic Warfare was given an appropriation which specified that travel expenses might be paid for travel outside the United States without people to the Standardized Government Travel Regulations and the bubblistence Expense Act of 1925. An employee traveled from Washington to Mabon where he became ill and was ordered to return. An exception was taken to payment of the venchor on the grounds that the travel performed was for personal reasons and therefore not an obligation of the Government. The Office of Economic Warfare pointed to their appropriation language, claiming that they were exempted from the normal travel limitations. The Comptroller General referred to previous decisions concorning travel for personal reasons and then stated as follows:

particularly with reference to employees whose official travel was subject to the Subsistence Expense Act of 1925, 44 Stat. 620, as amended, and the Standardized Government Travel Regulations, nevertheless the rule appears equally applicable to official travel not controlled by said statute and regulations, as in the instant case. That is to say, the appropriation for traveling expenses here chargeable may not be regarded as available for travel not performed on official business but for personal reasons."

that the payments to were illegal and that are exceptions in the accounts of the certifying officers were properly taken. As pointed cut above, there was no obligation on the part of the Government until travel status was attained. We are unable to find any valid basis for approving the expenditures.

factual question which might require clarification. She entered on duty on 1947. Available records establish that from September 1945 until 8 May 1947 she was working and living in Washington. It was therefore assumed by the auditor, and in the subsequent discussions, that she continued to reside in Washington from 8 May until the time of her entrance on duty with CIA. It is conceivable that she actually moved from Washington during this period and was brought back by CIA for temperary duty while en route to her fereign post. If this were true, it would give a technically begal basis for allowance of per diem, whatever the wisdem of such an action from an administrative point of view; but the burden of proof to establish such actual change of residence is on the certifying officer and the employee.

U.S. Officials Receiving Salary from Outside Sources

l. The basic statute pertaining to this subject is set forth in 5 U.S.C.A. 66 as follows:

"No Government official or employee shall receive any salary in connection with his services as such an official or employee from any source other than the Government of the United States, except as may be contributed out of the treasury of any State, county, or municipality, and no person, association, or corporation shall make any contribution to, or in any way supplement the salary of, any Government official or employee for the services performed by him for the Government of the United States. Any person violating may of the terms of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than $1,000 or imprisonment for not less than six menths, or by both such fine and imprisonment as the court may determine."

- 2. There are few decisions on the application of this statute, and none of them fit precisely the case in point, which involves payment of compensation by a private corporation to a U.S. official. The Comptroller of the Treasury ruled that if there was an inference that the purpose was clearly to enlarge the personal emoluments of officials by means of funds privately contributed, the above-cited statute would apply (45 Comp. Dec. 43). The Attorney General has ruled that where no facts are presented which would justify such an inference and where the arrangement proposed is not intended to and will not result either directly or indirectly in payment of increased salaries, the prohibition does not apply (35 Op. Atty. Gen. 273).
- 3. Aside from the precise provisions of the above statute, the Comptroller General has indicated that in certain cases the private employment night be antagonistic to the official duties of the employees and that public policy might raise objection to the dual status (14 Competent vist). In part, this last ruling appears to be based on special considerations which would not apply to our present case, as it was a depression ruling, and the Comptroller was noting that by accepting the private employment, the Government employee was performing work outside at the expense of the unemployed at a time when the Government was spending billions on relief. However, the public policy sgainst inconsistent or antagonistic duties should be observed.

Gen. 127:

"Manifestly it is contrary to public policy, if not prohibited by statute, for any Federal, State, or county official to enter into private arrangements with either a private or a public corporation whereby such official is to receive textrat payments, not authorized by law, for official services rendered by him either during or outside of regular office hours."

He then cites the law set forth above as one of the statutes declaratory of this provision and brings attention to the fact that two high ranking army officers had shortly before been dismissed after conviction of misconduct involving these statutes and the public policy of which they are decapendation for performance of official duties, i.e., performance of duties which are inherent in the office he occupies. It would not appear to prohibit performance of private service requested by a private employer, as the Comptroller (eneral has further stated that he knows of no law or regulation prohibiting payment of Federal pay during such leave worked for and received compensation from the private employer, provided that the private salary does not constitute a contribution toward the Federal salary in contravention of the last set forth above. (20 CK)

5. The conclusion appears to be that there is no objection to an arrangment between a U.S. official and a private corporation, whereby he will perform and be paid for services in no way required by his official differ and which he performs outside of Government hours or while on an amual leave so long as such services are not clearly inconsistent with his official duties.

6. Since the pond prohibition runs only to the employee or his private employer, our opinion as advisors to the Agency may not be adequate protection when considering any arrangements which may be made. We feel the individual should be advised that it night be well for him to sock private councel in order to make sure that his arrangements with the private copleyer are bone fide and do not raise an inference that his salary is being supplemented from cutaids sources. Of course, we shall be glad to give assistance if requested.

Medical Supply Procedure

29 November 1948

- l. Reference is made to your memorandum of 14 October 1948, which raised certain questions in regard to the handling and control of narcotics and allied drugs. Since some of the specific questions require alternative assumptions, we believe a more comprehensible reply can be given through a general explanation than through isolated answers.
- Generally, international narcotics control is effected through protocol which requires "member" nations to estimate their annual supply and demand and adhere to such limits. Thus, even licensed import or export is restricted to a quota. Within the countries themselves, the degree of control varies with local inclination. United States has several regulatory federal statutes, not all of which require our attention (e.g. there is no need to consider Marijuana control). They each serve their ambit and are complimentary in function. First, is the Harrison Narcotics Act which is designed to control trafficking, transportation and possession within the United States and its insular possessions. It requires registration and the payment of a tax, and it is ostensibly a tax measure although the penalties are enforced by the Bureau of Marcotics. Under this Act, Government officials are exempt when performing any of the business indicated in the Act within the course of their official duties, subject to proof of their entitlement to this exemption. The Narcotic Drug Import and Export Act regulates just what its title indicates. Certain conditional exemptions contained in the Harrison Act are not contained in the Import-Export Act, nor are Government officials exempt. It can be noted that drugs, not initially included, can be brought within the scope of both Acts by Presidential Proclamation. In general, the export of narcotics is unlawful unless the place of entry is a country party to the International Opium Convention of 1912, and then only if the country (1) controls imports, (2) the narcotic is assigned to an authorized licensee, (3) it is for medical and legitimate uses, (4) it will not be re-exported, and (5) a shortage and demand for the narcotic exists. Smoking opium is unconditionally prohibited in all events. Insofar as the mechanics of obtaining a license are concerned, application is filed with the Commissioner of Narcotics, supported by the necessary information and an import license or permit from the country of entry. Records should be retained by the exporter, identifying the foreign consignee. An additional statutory provision (which is not part of the Import-Export Act) controls the possession of narcotics on board a United States vessel on a foreign voyage.

- 3. Within the United States and its insular possessions, the Food and Drug Administration and the Eureau of Narcotics act in conjunction. The former regulates the admission of all drugs (whether or not narcotics) into interstate commerce and some control on their handling; the latter makes a determination on the narcotic properties of a drug. In this respect, the Food and Drug Administration destinguishes between "habit-forming" drugs producing only a psychic dependence and "addictive" drugs causing both psychic and physiological dependence. Barbiturates, for instance, are in the twilight zone of control and ore not subject to federal narcotic regulation. Some states way exercise control over the dispensation of this type of drug but the Food and Drug Administration requires only that the package be appropriately marked "May be habit-forming."
- In view of the general intent of the Statutes controlling both the domestic as well as the international use of narcotics, it seems cogent that an authorized use by a Governmental official - clearly in the performance of his duty - can be justified even in the face of a technical violation of a United States statute. relative compulsion of enforcing a federal prohibition should certainly be balanced against the desideratum of accomplishing an end which is equally in the interest of the Government. It is therefore suggested that adequate justification for the issuance of any narcotics be obtained and retained on record whenever the dispensation of narcotics is required. Adequate proof that the narcotic was issued by the Medical Officer in accordance with an operational order would appear to insulate the Medical Officer against prosecution. As a practical matter, it is understood that the only narcotic derivative which is dispensed at the present time is paregoric. This is issued in small personal quantities and is conditionally exempt under the Harrison Act. There is, therefore, no potential liability provided it is for medical or legitimate purposes. Burbiturates, as explained above, are not subject to federal control at the present time, and, finally it is understood that drugs used in support of operations have not been narcotic in nature,
- 5. This office will be glad to advise you regarding any specific situation that may occur, but, in the meantime, it is hoped that the above discussion provides at least a general background for action.

l. The question was raised by in regard to the disposal of certain working files and reference copies of cables and ciphers. An application for the disposition of similar SSU records was made to Archives and approved by the House in 1946.

Taised the question of whether this authorization was sufficient for CIG and present CIA records, or whether supplemental authority was required. He also asked whether microfilm would be acceptable as a permanent record copy of outgoing messages.

I discussed the matter today with Mr. Edgar Campbell who is in charge of the War Records Division at Archives. Mr. Campbell informed me that there had been no clear decision regarding the need of supplemental authority to cover disposition of CIG and CIA records when the original authority was given to SSU. He stated that Archives would not object to disposition of CIA records under the previous SSU authority but indicated that there was a possibility that lack of authorization might be uncovered in the event of an inquiry. was advised.25X1A9a of this conversation, and, in conjunction with he will present an application for the disposition of CIG and CIA records in conformance with the established procedure of filing an application which will then be presented to Congress for approval. 25X1A9a 25X1A9a 3. Mr. Campbell indicated that a microfilm record was acceptable in lieu of paper, but he suggested that it might be advisable to hold an informal conference with the appropriate person in this Agency (probably prior to filming in order that the proper sequence and necessary order could be preserved for the use of the Archivist. If determines it is necessary to submit those final record copies to Archives, he will confer with Mr. Campbell prior to filming.

- 2. The Instruction of 25 October 1947 superseded a previous Instruction dated 31 October 1946, but there is no conflict between the two Instructions in regard to the quarters allowance grouping within Group 2. The later Instruction is clearer, but, in fact, if not in terminology, the two are identical. The memorandum of 15 October 1947 referred specifically to the earlier Instruction and simply provided approval which was authorized by the Instruction. Although the memorandum referred specifically to the first Instruction, the reference seems primarily for justification of authority, and in view of the fact that such authority was neither superseded nor modified by the later Instruction, we do not believe it is necessary to obtain a new approval from the Director.
- 3. As the result of recent discussions with the legal representative of the Department of State, it is understood that the problem presented here will be moot after the first pay period of 1949 which includes 2 January. At that time, the new Standardized Government Civilian Allowance Regulations become effective. The Regulations are issued by the State Department under the authority delegated by the President in Executive Order 10011 of October 22, 1948. By interpretation of the State Department, with concurrence of the Bureau of the Budget, any exceptions to the maximum Quarters Allowances (Regulations, Section 9.3) apply only to Foreign Service personnel 25X1C4a For all other personnel, the limits contained within the table are inflexible. Thus, the only manner in which a CAF-12, regardless of his duties, could be entitled to the allowances of Group 2 would be by an increase in classification to conform with the table.

Use of Metered Parking Space by Government Cars

- 1. The question has been raised regarding the propriety of paying for metered parking space when cars bearing Government tags are used.
- The Comptroller General has indicated in two opinions that payment for the use of metered spaces for Government cars will not be allowed as long as there is no statutory provision or judicial decision permitting it. In 18 Comp. Gen. 151, it was held that appropriate monies could not be considered available for the purchase of service cards for the parking of Government vehicles in a metered zone in lieu of payment of parking fee rates. This was so notwithstanding the fact that the charge for the cards was normal and the fee covered the cost of inspoction, installation, operation, control, etc. of the parking area and moters. The question arose when the Voterans' Administration indicated their need to park cars within a metered zone for the convenience of disabled beneficiaries obtaining prosthetic appliances. The Comptroller decided that it was not necessary to determine whother the charge was a tax or a fee incidental to the excerise of the police power. His opinion was based. on the fundamental freedom of the Federal Government from interference by a State or Municipality, and he specifically called attention to the opinion of Mr. Justice Holmes in Johnson v. Maryland, 254 J.S. 51, in which it was stated that the subjection of agents of the Federal Government to local law may properly be extended to general rules that only incidentally affect the mode of carrying out the employment. Inferentially, the Comptroller indicated that the identification of the car as a Government-owned vehicle would obviate any liability for payment of the parking fee. The opinion was approved and amplified in 26 Comp. Gen. 397 in a situation where meters were removed and the restricted space was rented from the city. Again, he emphasized the fact that payment of the rent was not authorized in the absence of a court decision or a statutory provision.
- 3. In practice, the problem does not appear to have arisen or at least not to have been questioned in several Government Agencies queried in Washington. In the case of the Army, the fee is paid when necessary by the person to whom the car is assigned. This is also true in the Corps of Engineers. The Treasury Department obtains police permits for everyone using cars within restricted or metered areas, and the Department of Interior is completely unaware of any difficulty.

4. Unfortunately, there does not appear to have been any instance in which a Government car was left in an unpaid metered space and notice of traffic infraction served by the local police. When this happens, we shall probably have the clearest presentation of the issue.

Limitation of Liability in Bill of Lading

- l. Goods were shipped from Rosslyn, virginia, to on a Government bill of lading by the Railway Express Company. On arrival, it was discovered that the goods had been damaged to the extent of $80.70. The carrier (Railway Express Agency) was notified of the damage and payment of other outstanding accounts was withheld pending settlement of the claim. The Railway Express Agency asserted that their liability was limited to $50.00 in accordance with the terms of the standard express receipt. The fact that a Government bill of lading, rather than the commercial type, was used was pointed out to them and the carrier's liabil ty to the full extent of the damages was claimed by this Agency Railway Express replied that conditions 2 and 5 of the Government bill of lading provided that the same terms governing commercial shipments and the limited valuations specified in their tariff applied to the Government bill of lading in view of the reference therain to the commercial express receipt.
- 2. It can be accepted that the United States, in the course of . its commercial transactions, is bound by the same practices which would (United States v. Averican Sales Corporation, govern an individual. 27 Fed. (2nd) 389, [1928].) Generally, the carrier is obliged to pay the full claim for any damages resulting from its negligence and a complete and unconditional release for the negligence of the carrier is void. (Woodburn v. Cin., N.O. & T. P. Ry. Co., 40 F. 731.) However, this rule, which is maintained in the interest of public policy, can be restricted by a valid limitation of damages when the shipper is given a choice of rates. (Union Pacific Railroad Company v. Burke, 255 U.S. 317 [1920].) When the rates are based on a stated valuation, it is established in. common law that the compensation should be related to the risk, and a limitation commensurate with the rate will be upheld. (American Express Company v. United States, 60 Court Claims 429 [1925].) There are elements of estoppel in the situation and at least one court divorced it from the theory of consideration. Simply, it has been stated that the "rate must be tied to the release". (San Giorgio I. Rheinstrom Bros. Company, 294 U.S. 494 /19347.)
- 3. When more than one rate is available and the stated value of the goods at the lower rate can be tied to the "release valuation", the snipper is bound by that ceiling on damages. In passing, it should be noted that the shipper's knowledge of the rate which the carrier is lawfully entitled to charge is conclusively presumed. (Kansas City Southern Railway Co. v. Carl, 227 U.S. 639 [1912].) The shipper's acceptance of the express receipt containing a limitation of liability which is related to Approximate For Release 2001/08/28; CIA RDP67-01057 A000100020001-8

Amendment of June 29, 1906, to the act of February 4, 1887, 49 USCA
Section 20 (Wells Fargo and Co. v. Neiman-Marcus Co., 227 Us. 469.)
In addition to the fact that the shipper is conclusively presumed to have knowledge of the carrier's rate, it should be noted that the conditions in the bill of lading are binding on the shipper simply by acceptance of the carrier's service and the shipper's signature on the bill of lading is not necessary. (American Railway Express Co. v.
Lindenberg, 260 U.S. 584 [1922].)

4. There is no indication on the face of the bill of lading that an evaluation was given to the property shipped. The invoice value of $350.00 is stated only in the report of loss on the back of the bill of lading and apparently was not stated at the time of shipment. Nor was any provision made for payment of evaluation in excess of that provided in the tariff limitations. In unpublished opinion B-38529, dated 26 May 19/4, the Comptroller General limited recovery to the tariff ceiling in a situation identical to this. Hule 13C of ICC 4500, Official Express Classification No. 33, provides for a limitation of liability in the shipment of adding machines of $50.00 for any amount under 100 pounds and $.50 per pound for any weight in excess of 100 pounds. In view of the Comptroller's opinion on this particular point, it appears that the Express Company's contention is valid and that our claim for damages should be reduced from the actual amount of $80.70 to the tariff maximum of $50.00

As stated in 1-77305, it is important whether that return is for leave or for superation, and the entension of Forcian Service Regulations to such employees can not oversta to extinguish this contractual right. Travel expenses would be received by the employee and his dependents if the curloyee is being returned upon completion of his prescribed time, either for assignment in Predication or for soperation, and there would be no doubt that competent travel authority could compare travel expenses for that professes in accordance with foreign Service bules and Regulations. Since the purpose for returning iones louve, nonrection, or recomment, has been held imposerial, it. is the opinion of this office that once the obligation for travel of government emenes in clear, Foreign Service Regulations could be emplied reportless of the rosson for the travel. The maker to your equestion (b) is answered accordingly.

In your quantion (a), you impairs unother trevel previously incurred parament to TDY orders now be changed so as to parent is endonce to claim travel expenses, if he were eligible for leave, to and from his place of residence. If an employee were appeared to the United States for temperary daty for macricatation and trainings it was customary to possit the employee to take leave at his own expense. Ris temporary duty was performed in Washinston, and he was placed on leave at Machington, and travel to any other place was a personal matter for the employee. Each travel order of this type was considered by the appropriate person at the time of the laminace, and it must be assumed that the intent was clear at the time competent travel authority signed the order. To any now, this such an employee was brought to the United States for the purpose of taking leave would be to dear the record. Consequently, in the absence of miragial circumstances indicating mininistrative errors, there epocars to be no outhority at this time to recognice an employee's civin for travel empences based on the assumption that his 70% orders were notually home lower orders. Reclaim Covering Drivers License Fees

- 1. Your memorandum of 24 December 1948, presented the question of reimbursement to a Government employee for the expense of obtaining a drivers license in connection with Government owned passenger vehicles for official business.
- 2. In an opinion dated March 19, 1924 (3 Comp. Gen. 662) the Comptroller General stated that:

"The facilities of the Federal Government are not subject to local state ordinances or regulations and where such an ordinance or regulation of a municipal fire department requires that a permit be obtained for the operation of a gasoline pump, such permit to be issued upon examination and payment of a fee, a Federal employee, whose official duties require the operation of a Federal gasoline pump, is not required to stand the examination or to pay the fee."

The immunity of the Federal Government from interference by a state or municipality is based on the decision in Johnson v. Maryland, 254 U.S. 51. That was a case in which an employee of the Post Office Department, while driving a mail truck, was arrested, tried, convicted and fined for not possessing a Maryland driver's license. The court denied the power of the State of Maryland to require an employee of the Federal Government to submit to an examination or to pay a license fee before performing his official duties in obedience to orders. In denying that the state had such power, the court said:

"Such a requirement does not merely touch the Government servants remotely by a general rule of conduct; it lays hold of them in their specific attempt to obey orders and requires qualifications in addition to those that the Government has pronounced sufficient. It is the duty of the Department to employ persons competent for their work and that duty it must be presumed has been phydromed."

The rule, of course, applies equally to a municipality which is a lesser unit of the state. The Comptroller deviated from a firm position, however, and stated that even if the employees were required to obtain the permits and pay the necessary fees the requirement would be a personal expense incidental to their qualification for work and reimbursement from appropriated funds would not be authorized. This compromise seems to indicate at the least a lack of certainty in the reasoning behind this opinion. In 15 Comp. Gen. 519, the first opinion was confirmed and the qualification of the expense as a personal one to the employee was restated. (Actually, in this case, the expense was allowed as a matter of reimbursement, but only because the employee was a member of the Civilian Conservation Corps and the Comptroller reasoned that the employment was largely in the nature of relief and to deny payment of the charge would controvert the nature of the employment itself.) The same line of reasoning was followed in 21 Comp. Gen. 769 - but with better justification - where reimbursement of the cost of a charifcur's license for an employee of a CPFF contractor was denied. The Comptroller again felt that the expense was personal to the employee as an incident to his employment. The Comptroller's manner of thinking is somewhat clarified by his opinion in 25 Comp. Gen. 10, where payment for a license exempting the purchaser of fuel from payment of state tax was allowed. In a previous decision (21 Comp. Jen. 863) he had decided that the Federal Government was liable for a state fuel tax since the State had the right to decide on whom the incidents of the tax should fall, and the State had decided that it fell upon the vendor rather than the Government. It was, therefore, a legitimate charge not directly interfering with the function of the Government, since it was not a tax but a condition under which a privilege was extended...

3. Your association of this problem to that of the payment of metered parking space appears to be perfectly correct in view of the fact that the answers to both problems stem from the interpretation of sovereign immunity given by the Supreme Court in Johnson v. Paryland. If Johnson v. Paryland is to be followed to its ultimate deduction, there would seem to be no doubt about the employees immunity from payment of the license fee while driving a dovernment vehicle in the course of his official duties. The Comptroller has evaded a definite stand along this line, however, and has refused payment on the basis that payment of the fee is an element of the employee's qualification for duty. Although this does not appear to be particularly sound, it is nevertheless the fact and reimbursement of the charge cannot be authorized.
